Long's Dynasty Collapses in Louisiana

JONES SWEPT INTO POWER AS GOVERNOR

Huey's Brother Loses in Run-Off Primary With Graft and Corruption as Big Issue.

FIRST BEATING SINCE 1928

Jones' Slate of Secondary State Officers Also Win; Disorders Few.

(By Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS — The Huey P. Long political dynasty, born of 12 years of dictatorial violence, died peacefully by ballot yesterday after one of the longest and bitterest election campaigns in Louisiana's history.

Voters in the Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary swept to defeat Governor Earl K. Long, brother of the "Kingfish" and titular leader of the machine, and nominated Attorney Sam Jones of Lake Charles to the office.

Jones, a newcomer to politics, pledged himself to restore democracy to Louisiana, regain much of the millions of dollars he said administration office holders stole from the state, and jail those found guilty of graft and corruption.

The machine rout appeared complete with Jones' slate of secondary state officers, engaged in the runoff, going in without a break, together with a new anti-machine legislature, and possibly an anti-machine state central committee.

Unofficial returns from 1,452 of the state's 1,703 precincts gave Jones 243,346 votes and Long 225,642, a lead of 17,704 votes for Jones.

Nomination in overwhelmingly Democratic Louisiana is tantamount to election. Jones will take office May 14.

It was the first time since 1928, when Huey himself was elected governor, that the Long administration had been whipped.

3,500 Guards on Duty.

The martial air, characteristic of the Long rule, prevailed yesterday as the governor kept the state's 3,500 national guardsmen poised for duty but, aside from several fist fights, there were few disturbances.

Long said at the executive mansion in Baton Rouge he still believed complete returns would show him the victor.

STATE MUST PAY

Referee Says 27,000 Chrysler Workers Should Get Checks.

DETROIT —(AP)— A state referee ruled today that nearly $3,000,000 in unemployment compensation benefits should be paid to 27,000 of the more than 50,000 Chrysler Corporation workers thrown out of their jobs by a prolonged labor dispute last October.

The ruling, announced by Referee Charles Rubinoff of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission, excludes from benefits approximately 23,000 employes of three Chrysler plants in which he found strikes had occurred.

It upsets a decision by the commission, made last Nov. 10, that all Chrysler employes were "directly interested" in the dispute and thus were ineligible for compensation under the Michigan law.

COURT UPHOLDS TAX INJUNCTION

High Tribunal Refuses to Set Aside Temporary Order That Restrains Assessments.

The Ohio supreme court today refused to dissolve an order temporarily restraining County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe from assessing personal taxes alleged due from the estate of the late Frank B. Black of Mansfield.

A motion of counsel for Michael Hallabrin, plaintiff in the taxpayer's suit against the auditor, to dismiss the restraining order was heard by the supreme court last Thursday.

Effect of the court's action will be to halt the assessment until April 9 when the supreme court will hear the tax assessment case on its merits.

Auditor Wolfe had been ordered by the Fifth district appeals court to make the assessment, but the supreme court early last month granted the restraining order on the motion of Mrs. Jessie B. Black and other executors of the Black estate.

Hallabrin alleged in his action that the late Mr. Black escaped payment of certain personal taxes to the county from 1926 to 1932 under a state immunity provision that later was ruled unconstitutional.

State Tax Commissioner William Evatt previously had refused to issue a certificate of immunity to the Black estate executors that would have prevented the assessment and collection of the taxes.

MAE SCORES IN $1,000,000 SUIT

Actress West Wins Dismissal of Action on 'Diamond Lil' Profits.

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — Mae West's profits from the play, "Diamond Lil," apparently were secure today.

Superior Judge William S. Baird granted a defense motion for dismissal of playwright Mark Linder's $1,000,000 suit against Miss West. He and Miss West had collaborated in writing the play.

He had charged the Paramount studio gave the actress $25,000 for the play—filmed as "She Done Him Wrong"—but that Miss West and the company had entered a secret agreement under which she was to be paid more money.

CIRCUS LIONS, TIGERS DIE IN BLAZING CAGES

Man-Eaters Perish, Elephants, Horses Liberated as Fire Hits Indiana Quarters.

ROUND UP SURVIVORS

Circus Employes Find Camels, Monkeys Along Roadsides and in Barnyards.

(By United Press)

ROCHESTER, Ind. — Pressed against the still hot bars of their cages, circus men found today the tortured bodies of six lions, two tigers, two black leopards, two zebras, 100 monkeys, 15 antelopes, two llamas, and a sacred cow.

They had died horrible deaths in the fire which swept the winter quarters of Cole Brothers and Robbins circus last night.

Three hundred horses, 12 camels, 11 elephants, and 20 mules, monkeys and ponies, liberated by their keepers, stamped through this town, and scattered over the north Indiana countryside.

Early today towns and farmers assisted circus men in rounding up the grazing animals, which, because of their peaceable natures had been permitted to escape the inferno that engulfed the more savage animals.

They found camels grazing along the paved highways, amid billboards, silos, and farm houses.

Scream and Howl.

The circus employes were badly shaken by the horrible deaths of the big, ferocious jungle beasts. Their screams and howls filled the night, ringing shrill and tortured above the roar of the flames and the shrieking of fire truck sirens. Nothing whatsoever could be done for them because to liberate them meant turning man-eating beasts, maddened by fire, loose on an unarmed countryside.

The grazing animals were led individually from the burning building and liberated. Mad with fright they raced a half mile over fields and U. S. highway 31 into this community of 3,500, running down the main street more or less in a pack, the camels with their necks stretched out, the elephants with their trunks curled over their heads, occasionally trumpeting.

Most townsmen heard the thunder of the galloping herd from a distance and were out of the way by the time it arrived, and there was no sign of panic among them.

Russia Tells Countrymen to Leave Turkey Immediately.

ISTANBUL—(AP)—Hundreds of Russian technical experts employed in Turkish industry for many years under a Turkish-Russian agreement were ordered by the Moscow government today to return to Russia immediately.

The Russians are expected to embark on Russian ships with their families for Odessa, Russian sea port. The action follows the gradual liquidation by Russia of its commercial organizations in Turkey.

The Turkish press recently has discussed the possibility of war this spring in the Near East, with Russia's Caucasus oil fields a possible center of activity.

German technical experts employed here in national defense industries recently were sent home by Turkey, and the German-owned Krupp shipyards here was occupied by marines.

Move to Bring Davey Here Stirs Dem Row

Richland Leaders Disturbed by Plan of Ashbrook to Have Former Governor Speak at Rally Saturday Night.

Attempts to bring former Governor Martin L. Davey to Mansfield Saturday night to speak at a big Democratic rally in behalf of Byron B. Ashbrook, candidate for congress in the 17th district, stirred a bitter row today among Richland county party leaders.

Plans for the rally, which apparently were made at Ashbrook's campaign headquarters in Johnstown, took county party leaders by surprise, they said. Most of them said they were not in favor of any rally and especially one that will bring Davey here to speak for Ashbrook.

County Democratic leaders were in a "huddle" with Ashbrook and his chief campaigner, Capt. Victor Hunt Harding, executive secretary of the Democratic national congressional campaign committee, for two hours today at the courthouse to "iron out" the trouble over the proposed rally.

The conference, called by John C. O'Donnell, county Democratic executive chairman, was still in session at 12:15 p. m. It was a closed meeting in the grand jury room at the courthouse. Democratic county officials also sat in on the session.

Announcement of the rally, which came from Ashbrook's headquarters in Johnstown, said Davey, Mrs. Mildred Jaster, Democratic national committeewoman; William Pickrel, former lieutenant governor; State Auditor Joseph Ferguson, and Atty. Carl Henkel of Mansfield would speak.

See No Need of Rally.

Before today's meeting at the courthouse, O'Donnell and G. A. Baer, county central committee chairman, said they had planned no meeting for Saturday and considered it useless since Ashbrook was here last Saturday and spoke at a rally in Jackson township last night.

Before the meeting was over early this afternoon, Ashbrook told The News-Journal that the decision about Saturday's proposed rally here was left to him and that he "didn't think there will be any rally."

Ashbrook said he had asked Davey and a number of other party leaders in the state to come into the district to speak for him, but he had not made definite arrangements about when the meetings will be held.

"I'll decide about the Mansfield rally this afternoon and then call Mr. Davey in Chicago to tell him

900 AT OPENING OF FOOD SCHOOL

Institute Lecturer Proves to Audience That Life Really Begins at Breakfast.

The annual Gasco Food Institute opened this morning at the Ohio theater before an audience of about 900, with Miss Louise McFarland demonstrating that life really begins at breakfast—when there are hot blueberry muffins, "pam" cakes, maple syrup, fruit juice and coffee on the menu.

Miss McFarland, food expert, said that breakfast probably was the most important meal of the day because it is the foundation on which depends the entire day.

On her first day's program she gave a number of recipes for preparing the old stand-bys of breakfast. The left over cereal from one day may be made into a tempting dish for the next day, she said, by packing it into a mold, cutting it in slices, dipping in egg and corn meal and browned in a skillet.

"Pam" cakes, under the skilled hands of Miss McFarland, turned out to be thin slices of baked ham dipped in pancake batter and griddle fried. French toast cakes and eggs-in-a-frame were dishes that would tempt anyone away from the standard coffee and toast breakfast menu.

The Gasco Institute, which is being presented to Mansfield housewives by the Ohio Fuel Gas company in co-operation with The News-Journal and the merchants of the city, continues through tomorrow and Friday. Miss Pauline Schofield, home service representative of the Gas company, is assisting Miss McFarland.

Tomorrow's program will be based on the "Meal of The Day," whether it is at noon or evening. There will be three dishes of meat and vegetables combined, a salad, several vegetable dishes and several entirely new dishes.

MT. GILEAD TAX LEVY TRIUMPHS

Village Votes 589 to 16 for Funds to Rebuild Sewage Disposal Plant.

(By Staff Correspondent)

MT. GILEAD—Mt. Gilead voters yesterday cast an almost unanimous vote in a special election for a proposed 3.5-mill tax levy to finance rebuilding of the village sewage plant and to pay for street lighting and water hydrant rental.

The levy carried 589 to 16, as about two-thirds of the normal vote here was cast. The normal vote is between 1,100 and 1,200. A 65 per cent majority was needed for the levy to pass.

Passage of the levy will provide funds for rebuilding of the village sewage plant, which was considered a necessity, and provide funds for the street lights and hydrant rental.

The 3.5-mill assessment is all that will be required above the regular revenues in the next two years, village officials say. Officials said cost of the disposal plant improvement will be born by all taxable property.

A two-mill levy for street lights and hydrant rental was turned down by voters in the fall election, and was incorporated in the 3.5 mill levy voted on yesterday.

Movies of Major 1939 Grid Games on Banquet 'Menu'

A feature of Friday night's News-Journal banquet for the Mansfield High football squad will again be the showing of sound motion pictures of the highlights of last fall's major collegiate gridiron clashes.

In addition to this film, "Highlights of the 1939 Football Season," the motion picture bill will include a technical reel on the grid sport and another film depicting 1939 highlights of other sports. The full hour picture show has been arranged by Harry De Laney of the Ohio theater.

George E. Gauthier, athletic director and head football coach at Ohio Wesleyan, will be the principal speaker, with Carl H. Henkel, Mansfield attorney, serving as toastmaster.

A portion of the Mansfield high school band, directed by J. Merton Holcombe will also be on hand to provide music before the dinner.

Tickets are still available and may be purchased at The News-Journal business office, Senior high school, Tawse pharmacy and Bates Candy shop for $1.55.

RARE MALADY

Ohio Child, 11, Taken to Hospital With Sneezing Attacks.

MARIETTA —(INS)— Three days of continuous sneezing sent Marjorie Ruth Kaneff, 11-year-old daughter of Harold Kaneff, to a hospital today.

Physicians said the sneezing attack, which started Monday, was caused by irritation at the brain center. They described it as a rare case.

Explosives Set Town Afire in Surprise Raid

'Accidental' Bombing Puzzles Swedish Officials; Buildings Burn But All ResidentsEscape; Stockholm Opens Investigation, Protest Planned.

(By International News Service)

STOCKHOLM—Apparently mistaking it for a Finnish community, seven bombing planes of the Soviet air fleet raided the Swedish Lapland village of Pajala today.

Ten high explosive and a number of incendiary bombs were dropped, tearing great craters in the main road running through the village and setting a number of buildings ablaze.

There were no casualties.

Although Swedish officials were inclined to believe that the bombing was accidental, some surprise was expressed that the bombers could have mistaken their position as visibility at the time was good.

One report in Stockholm said that one-quarter of all the wooden buildings in Pajala were ablaze as a result of the raid.

Pajala, a community of 1,500 inhabitants, lies 10 kilometers inside the Swedish border from Finland.

The incident marked the first violation of Swedish soil by the Russian army or air force since the Russo-Finnish war began.

In the early stages of the war, when Soviet forces were attempting to take Petsamo and the so-called "nickel city" of Salmijaervi, Russian planes on several occasions crossed into Norwegian territory dropping bombs, and a number of artillery shells fell on the Norwegian side of the frontier.

Hundreds of Finnish refugees attempting to cross the Finnish-Norwegian border by way of Kirkenes also have been subjected to Russian fire, and in these cases Soviet shells again dropped on Norway's soil.

Village on Frontier.

In the sub-Arctic areas of Finland, Sweden and Norway, the borders are clearly defined but not easy to distinguish from the air, and several Finnish villages lie directly on the Swedish frontier.

Pending full investigation and reports from prefectural authorities in Lapland, the Swedish government withheld full announcement of today's incident.

It was assumed that a sharp protest would be made to Moscow even if the bombing was found to be accidental. Neutral observers expressed doubt that the Soviets had decided at this stage to launch any sort of an offensive against Sweden, particularly in view of the announced decision of the government and of King Gustav to withhold outright military aid to Finland.

SEA BATTLE; British, Nazi Ships Stand Off Norway Coast

(By United Press)

BERGEN, Norway—Norwegian coastal reports today said that both British and German ships were standing off the coast and that a British squadron was cruising off north Norway, near the Finnish Arctic coast.

A severe air battle was reported in dispatches from the town of Kirkenaes, on the Norwegian-Finnish frontier, but the nationality of the planes—said to be battling over the Petsamo region—was uncertain.

Coastal reports concerning naval activity off Norway were fragmentary and did not immediately clarify developments, but there was nothing to indicate a naval conflict. Nor was it known definitely whether German warships or merchant ships were involved.

In the past, a number of German merchant ships have gone to the Russian Arctic port of Murmansk and from there have slipped down the Norwegian coast and through the Allied blockade to Germany. The $20,000,000 liner Bremen reached home in that way.

There also have been unconfirmed reports that German submarines were operating out of Murmansk.

Officials said that the number of ships in the British squadron was not known.

It was stated definitely, however, that the British vessels were not far from the Petsamo area on the Finnish coast which now is occupied by Russian troops.

The purpose of the British warships in cruising off the north Norwegian coast was uncertain, but it was pointed out that their presence there might be connected with the recent Allied criticism of Norway in connection with the Altmark incident.

The only other possibility immediately advanced in speculation on the squadron was whether the Allies were planning some direct move to aid Finland, which was believed highly unlikely.

In connection with the British criticism of Norway, it was pointed out that both British and French spokesmen had indicated that the Allies might take some action to guarantee that Norwegian waters are not used for belligerent purposes.

BLIZZARD: Finns' Weather Ally Roars Into Heat of Battle

(By United Press)

HELSINKI, Finland—A blinding blizzard, "Finland's winter ally," swept all Finland during the night and threatened today to immobilize transport on all fronts including the embattled Mannerheim line.

Such a storm had been expected at the end of the recent wave of extreme cold. Finns had hoped and prayed for it and last night it came.

Reports from all over the country said heavy snows, swept by terrific winds, were prevalent and promised to last for days if not weeks.

All air activity had been halted already, reports said.

If this proved to be the normal winter blizzard, Finns said, it should tie up operations not only on the north and central fronts but in the isthmus, bogging all transport under heavy snow.

Then, the Finns said, there should be the thaw, which also would help them to hold off the Russian attacks.

(A United Press dispatch from Bergen, Norway, reported that heavy snow storms prevented military movements on the Petsamo front, in the far north of Finland. Copenhagen reported Russian mechanized units immobilized by the blizzard on the central front.)

Reports of the blizzard came as

How to Solve U. S. Ills? Chaillaux Would Bar All Immigration 10 Years, Deport Undesirable Aliens

Have Problems Enough of Our Own, Legion Speaker Avers.

How can the United States solve some of its ills?

Homer L. Chaillaux has the answers. Here are some of them:

Bar all immigration for 10 years or at least until unemployment problem is solved.

Deport all aliens who refuse to become good citizens.

Adopt universal registration and fingerprinting.

National Americanism director of the American Legion, Chaillaux' recommendations were given to an intensely interested audience of more than 1,200 last night at a public meeting at the Madison theater.

It climaxed a rapid-fire address of more than an an hour, which covered a score of subjects and gave ample evidence of Chaillaux's knowledge of the American scene.

His suggesions, incidentally are a part of the Legion's national program and some of them already have been incorporated in legislation.

Recommending that we bar all immigration for 10 years, or until we have no unemployment problem, Chaillaux said, "Let's make good citizens of all those aliens who want to be citizens of the United States and immediately deport every damn one who doesn't.

1,200 Hear How 'Isms' Were Exposed By Dies Probers.

He was applauded lustily by his audience.

He recommended universal registration fingerprinting and keeping of complete records of all residents of the United States, "so we'll know who's who and the whereabouts of our aliens and Communists."

Mother Who Killed Daughter, 5, Facing Sanity Tests

TELLS STORY OF MURDER IN LOS ANGELES

Knocked Child Unconscious. Then Dashed Her Head on Concrete Floor, She Says.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Dr. Paul J. De Rivers, an alienist, announced today that his preliminary examination of Mrs. Betty Hardaker, 26, who killed her five-year-old child by dropping her head down onto a concrete floor, indicated that she was sub-normal.

Mrs. Hardaker was recently released from a sanitarium.

"She was too good to live," Mrs. Hardaker sobbed when arrested in Palm Springs yesterday. "I didn't want her to lead the kind of life I had lived or endure what I did. I can't explain it or the reason I did it. I don't hate her. I love her. I love her. I loved her too much, I guess."

Her estranged husband, Charles, and her mother, Mrs. Etta Karnes, told police that she belonged to a Voodoo cult which "thinks God tells them to kill people." She was so fanatically religious, the husband said, that he had found it impossible to live with her.

Mrs. Hardaker denied that she had had religious or supernatural inspiration. She told Dr. Russel Gray in Palm Springs that she saw shadowy figures at night and often heard strange voices. Police said they were not investigating to discover if such a cult as the husband and mother described, actually exists.

Charged With Murder.

Mrs. Hardaker was charged with murder upon her return here from Palm Springs where she had fled after slaying Geraldine on Monday. They had gone to a public park and had played together for a while on a teeter-totter. They went into the park wash room and there an impulse seized her, she said.

She caressed the child before pushing her head violently against a wash basin, knocking her unconscious, she said.

Then, she said, she lifed the unconscious child by her ankles as high as she could and let her drop head first to the floor. She fled and the body was found a short while later.

She had intended killing herself, she continued, but after she had killed Geraldine, she didn't know how to do it.

She has two other children.

Era of 'Flapper' on Way Back, Ohio Hairdressers Told

COLUMBUS—(INS)—America is on the threshold of another "flapper" era.

Lura De Gez, New York fashion authority and stylist, today told the annual convention of the Ohio Hairdressers' Guild that the day of the short skirt, boyish bob, flat bosoms, and flaming youth manners is on its way back, and that by 1942 the word "flapper" would return to the everyday vocabulary.

Flapper fashions are the inevitable result of war in the world," said Miss De Gez. "Frills, and furbelows and ultra-femininity are out of keeping with wartime—even when war is 3,000 miles away.

"Hair is the first to go. Already we are in a fashion trend toward shorter, more boyish coiffures. The well-defined waistline is on the way out, and skirts are definitely on the way up."

But the future flapper will be somewhat more restrained than her predecessor of the "roaring twenties," said the style expert.

"Since America will not go to war," she said, "the presence of men at home will prevent the frantic extremes to which the girl of 20 years ago went in the boyish mode."

H. P. "Pete" Wappner of the Roth Brothers meat market, hasn't gone back to playing with little red wagons, but he found one mighty useful Sunday morning. Wappner was to deliver a basket of meat to a restaurant but after he had loaded the truck found that he couldn't get it going because of the icy pavements. The package was too big to carry, so he rented a little red wagon from a newsboy at the corner and delivered the order in it. Which is just what the folks back in 1900 said of the horseless carriages—"they won't work in bad weather."

Rip Van Winkle had nothing on the boy at John Simpson Junior high school the other afternoon who slept through a history class and awoke to find himself in a home economics class. While fellow students were reciting their history lessons, he leaned over his desk for a few winks. The "winks" turned into a real nap so teacher and other pupils left him at his desk as the period ended. The girls who came in for the economics class were equally as nice and didn't disturb him when they arrived. But was his face red when he awoke in the midst of a bunch of girls.

COLD COSTS LIFE

Ashland County Man Victim of Continued Exposure.

ASHLAND—Believed to have been a victim of the unusual cold weather of the past month, Roy Osborne Larabee, 48, was found dead at his farm home near Nova last night by his brother, J. G. Larabee, who lived with him.

Coroner George Emery said that death was due to the accumulative effects of exposure during the past few weeks. Mr. Larabee was lying on the floor of a bed room on the second floor, in which the window panes were broken and snow had blown in.

Dr. Emery said the man's feet had been frozen some time during the past month and that a gangrenous condition had set in. He said he believed the man's shoes had not been off his feet for some time, probably because they couldn't be taken off. He said they had to be cut off the body last night.

Mr. Larabee was alive yesterday morning when the brother, a railroader, went to work. When the brother returned home last night he found Mr. Larabee dead on the floor. Dr. Emery said he had been dead about 12 hours.

He is survived by one other brother, C. E. Larabee of Penfield. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Gilbert funeral chapel and the body will be taken to Sullivan for burial.

URGES REVISION IN UIS PROGRAM

Altmeyer Says States Should Liberalize Set-Ups; Wants Shorter Waiting Period.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Arthur J. Altmeyer, social security board chairman, declared today it was imperative that the states overhaul and liberalize their unemployment insurance systems.

Altmeyer recommended that the waiting period for benefits be cut to one week, that payments be made for at least 16 weeks a year, and that states with large surthirds of the weekly wage—at least $20.

He made public his views in the Social Security Bulletin, amplifying the board's stand previously outlined in its annual report to congres.

Altmeyer also proposed that the minimum benefits paid by the states should be at least $5 a week, that partial unemployment benefits should be paid in all states, and that eligibility regulations should be simplified with a view to more prompt payment.

His suggestions are not to be considered the ideal for jobless insurance standards, he said, but something to be given immediate consideration.

"States with sufficient reserves and current income (from social security taxes) may well consider making their benefits still more adequate," he added.

Altmeyer explained that the state plans in the beginning of the program were kept on a conservative basis to insure the solvency of state funds.

Benefits are financed by a tax on employes of eight or more persons.

DIES AT HOME

Austin Metcalf, 67, Was Native of Richland County.

Austin O. Metcalf, 67, of 228 North Main street, died at his home yesterday after a brief illness. He was born in Richland county, June 5, 1872, and spent his entire life in this vicinity.

MOVIE UNION CZAR RELEASED ON $5,000 BOND

Attorneys to Claim Illinois Delayed Too Long in Handling His Case.

(By United Press)

CHICAGO—William Bioff, film union czar, mapped with his attorneys today legal strategy he hopes will enable him to escape serving the remainder of an 18-year-old jail sentence for pandering.

His attorneys who will go into court Friday and argue that Illinois forfeited its right to jail him by allowing his case to lapse. He was at liberty on $5,000 bond.

Bioff, western representative of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (AFL) and leader of 30,000 movie workers, flew here from Los Angeles and surrendered voluntarily to state's attorney's police yesterday.

Bioff said he would fight resentencing and charged his return was inspired by "moneyed interests" and "communists."

Bioff was convicted and sentenced to six months in jail in 1922. He was released after serving six days so he could appeal. The sentence was affirmed by the appellate court but Bioff remained at liberty under formal notice that he would appeal to the state supreme court. The appeal never was taken.

Shortly after his return here Bioff wired west coast union leaders his resignation as chairman of a committee which has been conducting wage negotiations with movie producers.

At Hollywood, it was announced that the conference of film studio unions refused to accept the resignation, preferring Bioff to any other negotiator. The conference requested that he continue as chairman. His attorney said he would answer the request today.

Bioff told reporters that the 18-year-old sentence and the federal charge of income tax evasion against him in California were part and parcel of a "conspiracy" involving "Communists, the C. I. O., big money interests and the government."

Asked to be specific, he stated: "Well, Harry Bridges (west coast Maritime Union leader) and his crew. They tried to come in, but we beat them through elections."

"It looks like persecution," he complained. "I came back to clean it (the old case) up once and for all."

COSTLY BAUBLE

Girl Steals Feather, Gets Five Days in Jail.

The lure of a ten cent feather in a Main street dollar store today cost a young colored girl five days in county jail with additional time for the costs of the case.

Esther Eubanks, 20, of 313 Bowman street, arrested for shoplifting Monday, was convicted in municipal court yesterday and was sentenced to 30 days in county jail and costs. The Voice of BROADWAY

Betty Grable's new way of forgetting Artie Shaw is Alexis Thompson, jr., the young multi-millionaire recently divorced from Ann St. George. He's the most ardent stage door Johnny in town. . . . Their intimates suspect that John Drew Devereaux (of the Barrymore tribe and "Life with Father") and Susan Fox, the ingenue, are secretly Mr. and Mrs. . . .

The Andrews Sisters, following that page one difficulty with their pappy, turned over their savings—more than $50,000—to their parents, and started their own bank account all over again.

The biggest torch the town has seen in many a moon is being toted backstage at "DuBarry Was a Lady" . . . Ethel Barrymore, as head of the Royal Family, gave brother John a colorful spanking in the verbal woodshed the other day. Told him just what she thought of his headline antics with Elaine, and almost singed him with adjectives. . . . Dan Tobin, of "Philadelphia Story" and Bettina Cerf, of "Leave Her to Heaven," are yum, yum.

FAIR ENOUGH

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Edwin Lahey of The Chicago Daily News, a reporter who has made a specialty of union affairs, has just finished a series of 10 stories, intended, as he said, "to allay the increasing public suspicion of the labor movement."

"The purpose of these articles," he wrote, "has been to offer a basis for the conclusion that the vast majority of the trade unions are on the up-and-up and that the black sheep among them are giving the whole movement a 'bum rap'."

Having read his series, it is my conclusion that he did not accomplish his purpose.

In the first place, he didn't show that the vast majority of the unions are on the up-and-up, but took the position that only the bad unions receive notoriety.

It is true that those unions which have received notoriety lately, namely, the so-called Stagehands' Union and the union of building service employes, are bad unions and not on the up-and-up. But it doesn't follow that all of the bad unions have received the same measure of publicity.

* * *

The teamsters for example enjoy a better reputation than they deserve because their national leadership is personally clean. In detail, however, the teamsters have been a bad lot in New York and it is well known, of course, that on the Pacific Coast, under Dave Beck, this union established a Fascist dictatorship which not only undertook the legitimate and laudable task of raising the teamsters' wages but presumed to limit and regulate business competition by the decrees of one man.

Behind the curtain of privacy in some unions, the A. F. of L., while claiming great privileges as the body of labor with a capital L, has not delivered an account of its trust, and there is so much unrest and complaint within the unions that the suspicion arises that all is not necessarily on the up-and-up in the quiet unions. Union rank and file keep quiet for other seasons than content.

It should be noted that the stagehands' and building service employes' unions also enjoyed quiet until a few weeks ago, and that when that quiet was disturbed, the American Federation of Labor was not responsible for the outcry.

Ever since then, although the best minds of the federation have held a meeting in Miami, they have not deplored the rottenness itself, but the expose.

It seems not to occur to the American Federation of Labor that it has responsibilities to the nation which are equal to its great privileges.

The betrayal of labor occurs not when foul conditions are exposed, but when men elected to responsible office neglect their duty to guard the sanctity of A. F. of L. charters, and certainly to keep these charters out of the hands of criminals.

* * *

The American Federation of Labor needs a reorganization and a revival of spirit in its national authority. It needs men on top who will instantly challenge intrusion into labor by thugs who have been underworld characters ever since they were old enough to snatch a purse.

Examples Make Girl Hesitate

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When a girl writes me that she and her fiance are devotedly in love, and there is no obstacle to their marriage except that she is holding off because her older sister has married badly, and at 26 or 27 looks like an old woman worn out with domestic cares and child-bearing, I feel like asking her if she declines to have an automobile because she's read about a motor accident in today's paper.

Unbelievable as it is that's the story of a good many letters which come to this column, especially when the engaged girl has to do her part in buying shoes and groceries for the poorly married sister's family. These young spinsters who command good pay envelopes have seen so many eight-cylinder romances skid and go into the ditch, that they are overcautious.

It's all very sad and very revealing, but not all marriages have such tragic finales. In spite of Reno, Mexico and our local divorce courts, there are husbands and wives who stay lovers 'till the end of the chapter.

Why don't these girls who write that they're afraid to marry because they see so much unhappiness on every side, concentrate on people, who, in each other's love, have had the strength given them to stand 70, 80, and even more years of living.

Every marriage is an individual proposition, and whether it stands or fails depends entirely on the amount of patience and good will that the couple take with them from the altar.

"My wife does not take half the care of me that she does the canary hanging in our dining-room window," wails a husband, "so I'm beginning to hate the canary and would enjoy wringing its neck."

Attention wives! Consider well this lesson of the canary and see that your husband is equally well fed and watered, and that he has a little of the goo-goo talk you shower upon the bird. After all, men are just grownup boys, and the sugar and spice you spread for them in your courting days (yes, I mean just that) will keep them happy and smiling until it comes time to have your picture taken for the golden wedding anniversary with your children and grandchildren in the background.

The prime recipe for a happy marriage is patience, good sportsmanship, intelligence, a little flattery now and then, and above all, a sense of humor. Please don't be afraid to try this old and unfailing remedy, all you girls who hesitate because you have a good fat pay envelope. Your pay envelope will not keep your heart warm after the days of your youth have vanished.

GALION — Mr. and Mrs. William Gregg who were injured Sunday evening in an automobile accident south of Galion, were removed from the Good Samaritan hospital Tuesday to their home near West Point in Morrow county.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Olina will be back here in a minute to summon me," I said. "Her mother wishes to see me as well as your father-in-law. I only sent Olina so that I could have a word with you. But you mustn't let her see you this way."

She straightened and stiffened as if she had been spurred.

"Not for a million dollars," she said tensely. "I'll run up the back stairs to my room. But tell me quickly, don't you agree with me about dear old Dad?"

"No, I don't." I said mendaciously, for my heart was heavy with foreboding.

"Didn't you see that devilish, mocking glint in his eyes when he was talking about my rendition?" she asked.

"Yes, I saw it," I answered, "but that only means what we have suspected all along, that he purposely drilled you in that technically correct but lifeless rendition so tht he could take the role away from you at the first rehearsal. But I still cling to my statement that he will not dare stifle his artistic conscience by taking you out of the role after he has heard you play it in our way."

"I hope you're right," Mary said listlessly, "but something in here"—she put her hand with an unconscious dramatic gesture to her heart—"tells me that tomorrow I'm going to be an awful flop, and a disgrace to you."

"I'll attend to your case with a hickory switch when I get through with seeing Olga and your father-in-law," I told her with mock severity. "Now you go directly to the nursery, ask Aunt Katharine for a sedative—tell her I sent you—then go to your room, take the sedative, undress and get into bed. I'll have your lunch sent up if you're awake, but I hope you'll be asleep. Count sheep, do anything so that you drop off for a while. Will you do all this?"

"I will obey to the letter," she promised with a wan smile, and I clapped her on the shoulder encouragingly. I did not dare risk another emotional breakdown by offering her the sympathy of a kiss or embrace.

"Look here!" I said. "I'm going to put that over tomorrow if you don't let me down by getting jittery. Please show a little confidence in me!"

Purposely I injected a wounded note into my voice, and Mary swung back to me with face aflame.

"Oh! please!" she pleaded. "Don't take it that way! I do have confidence in you. And I won't let you down. I promise you!"

"All right, darling," I said, smiling at her. "See that you don't! And now run, if you don't want to meet Olina. Go into my little study and wait until you hear her come in here. I'll hold her in conversation until you have a chance to get away."

"I'm already gone," she said, and vanished through the door leading to my study. She had been gone but a few seconds before Olina entered the room.

"Maman wishes to know if you will please come up to her room," she said.

"Of course," I said, rising. "I will go at once. But first, I want you to know, Olina, that I do congratulate you heartily on your success this morning."

"Thank you," she said in her pretty foreign way. Then she hesitated oddly.

"Do you mind," she said at last, "if I ask you a question about the difference between the way I'm reading my lines and the way Mary's reading hers?"

THEATERS

THIS AND THAT: In "The Ghost Breaker" Paulette Goddard will wear what is said to be the world's most expensive fur coat. It will be made of 12 pelts of the platinum fox, which is still the world's rarest fur. The Duchess of Windsor got the first one ever developed. The coat cost $100,000. No, Paulette, doesn't own it. It is just borrowed for the occasion. . . . Mickey Rooney's work in "The Young Edison" will set him right up there. He is said to do his finest work as the misunderstood boy. If his work hadn't been tops, it would have thrown cold water on the sequel, "Edison, The Man," which is played by Spencer Tracy. . . . Bette Davis has started work on "All This and Heaven Too." . . .

Corruption Is Theme.

Cafe Society has its serious side and sometimes takes an interest in things other than its own alleged glamor and headaches, according to "Slightly Honorable," which the Ohio shows for three days starting today. When graft and corruption threaten the state's integrity, the girls of Cafe society turn to and take a hand in righting things. Phyllis Brooks, Claire Dodd, Edward Arnold, Pat O'Brien and Ruth Terry are in the cast. There is a murder to every 1,000 feet of film.

Suggested By Wells Story.

The sequel to H. G. Wells' "Invisible Man," which was filmed in 1933, is "The Invisible Man Returns" and is a Madison theater attraction. This second "Invisible Man" story was not written by Wells, but is a follow-up on his story of the condemned murderer who escaped through being made invisible by the strange drug given him by his physician. Vincent Price has the leading role. The story of Carlotta and Maximillian, which recently served as Bette Davis and Paul Muni in "Jaurez," has been used again in "The Mad Empress," which is a second feature at the Madison.

• • •

"South of The Border."

The very popular cowboy song (written by two Englishmen who were never in America) is the theme of "South of The Border," which brings Gene Autry and his saddle partner, Smiley Burdette, to the Ritz for three days, starting tomorrow. The song is enlarged upon as a story which carrys the singing cowboy to Mexico. Lupita Tovar, Mexican actress, is in the cast. Also booked is "Call A Messenger" which combines the rascallity of both the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys.

• • •

Behind Scenes Drama.

Ginger Rogers proved that she was something more than a dancing lady in "Stage Door." She plays a straight dramatic role with an inclination toward comedy in this story of ambitious girls struggling for a foothold on the stage. Andrea Leeds is seen in a starkly tragic role, while Lucille Ball adds to the comedy. Katherine Hepburn is co-starred with Miss Rogers. "The Mad Miss Manton" with Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda is the second feature at the Majestic.

• • •

Romantic Comedy.

For today and tomorrow the Park is showing "Just Like A Woman" with Gertrude Michael and John Lodge; and H. G. Wells' spectacular story, "Things To Come." The latter is a film version of Wells's book on the world of the future, which is incredible in the present age. Playing leading roles are Raymond Massey, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Ralph Richardson. "Just Like A Woman" is a romantic comedy of two jewel buyers pitted against each other for a perfect necklace.

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU'RE NOT THAT GOOD

YOU MAY be a somewhat better player of the cards than your partner. But if you think you can get better results in the wrong contract than he can in the right one, you probably are making a bad mistake. Unless he is a terrific waster of tricks, your pair is usually better off in the soundly bid spot. Trying to throw the play of the hand to the stronger member of the pair has undoubtedly cost the loss of many more good scores than it has gained.

North violated a basic rule of sound bidding when he made his final call. A suit with something in both hands makes a safer trump than one bunched in a single hand. The greatest player in the world could not have made the heart slam against East's lead of the club K.

North took the lead in dummy. He knew the defenders would lead a trump at him if he repeated the club in hope of a ruff, so simply took his beating. He dropped the trumps, took the high spades and diamond A, but had to lose three tricks at the end because he could not get into dummy to use the spades.

Had North bid 6-Spades, or even 7-Spades, the contract would have been easy. Regardless of what West led, South could have walked in, even though he made no claims to being as great a player as the overconfident man opposite him.

Tomorrow's Problem.

After East bids 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, West 1-No Trump, North 2-Spades, East doubles and West leads the heart 9, how should South plan the play?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, February 22.

PECULIAR, irregular and conflicting testimonies are found in this day's astral auguries. There may be strange adventures in business, as well as intellectual and personal contacts. And while erratic and singular urges seem to invite these, there is much stability and sound incentive to counteract real danger. A stern application to work would prove an escape.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of stability and substantial progress if they will hew to the old traditional lines, as there are certain curious, eccentric or unorthodox propensities to combat with good sense and the wise counsel of elders. The social and romantic aspects are under this peculiar influence, which, properly governed, may prove constructive and end thrillingly.

A child born on this day, while having a studious, profound and responsible nature, may be assailed by side issues of quixotic, revolutionary or even destructive tendencies. Early and sound training would switch such creative propensities into progressive lines.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

Marianne

IF YELLOW is one of your favorite colors, you'll be happy this spring, because it's being featured in dresses for the coming season. . . . Combined with gray, it is especially attractive. . . . I saw one ensemble while shopping yesterday that had a light-weight gray wool skirt and a printed silk blouse of yellow, gray and white—a bolero of the gray wool completed it. . . . Plaids are also important for wear during the approaching season, yellow and two shades of gray plaid in light wool also formed an attractive dress.

* * *

Navy blue will be important in your spring wardrobe too. . . . One of the downtown stores is showing a clever three-way outfit, which will afford a variety of ways for wear. . . . The navy wool dress is tailored with fitted lines and a white pique collar. . . . Then there's a long sleeved jacket, which fastens with bright silver buttons. . . . There are silver buttons on the shoulder too, and perky, white-lined capes can be buttoned onto these. . . . Red, white and blue combinations are smart for spring, and one of these has a navy wool skirt with a lipstick red silk blouse—and a checked jacket of red, white and blue wool completes the gay outfit.

* * *

Many styles are popular in the coats for spring, so you can choose the one best suited to your figure and personality—those with the fitted bodice and flared skirt are just right for dressy wear, as are the swagger models with full fur collars. . . . Coats with straight lines are being shown again this year, although now they have extra fullness in the back. . . . Man-tailored suits, as well as the more dressy collarless and belted types, are good for springtime wear. But in variation from suits of the past few seasons, they all have flared skirts.

* * *

SPRING flowers are blooming on milady's hats this season—all varieties, colors and shapes being of equal importance. . . . Some of the hats are very tiny, having nothing but flower petals on them, while others (both in turban and sailor styles) combine flowers with straw. . . . In any event, they all have veils and ribbon trim on them, and can be purchased in soft pastels as well as brighter shades.

* * *

HERE'S A SECRET: Within the next few days, one of the downtown stores is going to have a special on the famous Fleurs d'Amour compacts. . . . These compacts, which are made by a long-famous French perfume house, contain compressed powder, which has no binder, and fluffs off at the mere touch of a puff. . . . In gay metal containers, with soft lambs wool puffs, these compacts have approximately two boxes of powder compressed in them. . . . The scent is lovely, as are the shades, Naturelle, Rachel and Rachel Fonce. . . . So you'd better get one at a bargain, because they last for a long time.

* * *

HAVE you seen the clever new afterbath cocktail sets? They contain tiny bottles of cologne and several packages of bubble bath in a variety of pleasant odors. . . . Whether you're a college girl or not, you'll find the college sets most handy for traveling—in bright silk with rubberized lining, these sets have a kit for lotion bottles and jars, another for clothes line and pins, one for cosmetics and another for tissues.

* * *

AND IN CONCLUSION: A bright note for your dark dress can be found in the new South American jewelry. . . . These necklaces and bracelets have wooden "gourds" on gold chains—the gourds are white, painted with swirls of bright colors.

* * * * *

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Coaches Hear Brown, Meese

60 Attend Meeting Held at High School.

Emphasizing the importance of a citizens' boosters club in the development of a keen athletic spirit, Coach Paul H. Brown of Massillon high school explained the workings of the Massillon unit at a dinner meeting of the Downtown Coaches club in the high school cafeteria last evening. Sixty attended the affair.

After the dinner, the "Coaches" witnessed the Mansfield-Massillon basketball game from a reserved section.

* * *

H. C. Hess, president of the Massillon Boosters club, also spoke. He complimented the Mansfield club on the progress it has made since its organization a few months ago.

* *

The principal speaker was D. Osborne Meese, who explained the progress of the Mansfield Tygers as a "Mansfield institution which deserves the support of every Mansfielder."

Otho McCormick, chairman of the recent membership drive staged by the "Coaches" reported that 196 new members were signed during the campaign. Ned Brooks, assistant coach, presided in the absence of Head Coach Joe Bichnik, who was out of the city on business. Harry E. Mecock, Mansfield athletic director, introduced the speakers.

Visitors Toss Ball Over Heads of Mansfield Cagers In Final Game of Regular Season.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

RIFLING the basketball from one end of the court to the other in the same manner that they discouraged their football foes to retain the state championship last fall, Massillon's Tigers again trimmed the Mansfield high school hoopsters by a 42 to 38 count in the Tyger lair last night before a crowd estimated at 1,300.

However the visiting Tigers' long-range aerial game was not as deceptive last night as it usually is on the gridiron.

They displayed a passing attack similar to the type witnessed in grade school competition, but it was effective against the Tygers, who concluded their regular season last night with 10 victories in 17 games.

* * *

Breaking faster than the Tygers on nearly ever exchange of the ball, the Massillons tossed the leather over the heads of the home town boys time and again last night to tally six baskets on "sucker shots."

* * *

Mansfield was not outplayed last night, and would have won by a good-sized margin had it halted the visitors long throws.

But even then the ball game was won on the foul line, and this was not the first time this season that the Tygers have been forced to swallow the bitter taste of defeat in this manner.

The Massillons made a remarkable showing on the charity stripe by converting 10 out of 11 tries. The teams were even in baskets with 16 apiece, but the Tygers were unable to make more than six of their 14 shots from the black stripe good.

Coach Vern Hoffman's men played their best basketball in the final period, but they were unable to hold the lead after making up a seven-point deficit, which was against the Tygers at the end of the third quarter.

A major factor in the Tyger defeat was the play of Horace Gillom and Bill Moody, a pair of tall Massillon colored lads, who made big Russ Beer's job around the basket a difficult one last night.

But Beer was again a standout performer on the offense for the Tygers. Beer, with eight points, and little Harry Phillips contributed 12 of the 14 points tallied by the Tygers in the final frame.

Beer, incidentally, led the Mansfield team in scoring with 12 points, and Gene Miller was only one point behind. George Slusser tallied 11 for the invaders and George Getz and Gillom each added 10.

The Tygers jumped into a 2 to 0 lead on a couple of free throws in the first period and did not make their first basket until the final minute when Beer connected on a pivot shot. Mansfield, which trailed 9 to 6 at the end of the first period, did not lead again until midway in the next frame when Don Rose's bucket from the corner gave it a 12 to 11 advantage.

* * *

Behind 17 to 15 at the intermission, the Tygers trailed all through the third period, which ended with Massillon on top by a 31 to 24 count. The Tygers knotted the count in the fourth frame before Coach Paul Brown's men could retaliate and gained a 36 to 35 lead on Beer's two-handed pivot shot near the end of the game before the visitors cinched the decision.

* * *

Mansfield, which has not beaten Massillon high in any kind of competition, since the rivalry was started five or six years ago, had dropped the preliminary game, the visiting reserves winning by a 37 to 27 count.

FIGHT FOR LOVE + + + + + + +

By SYLVIA TAYLOR
(Copyright, 1940)

CHAPTER 1

She should have known better, Star told herself afterward. But it had been such a thrilling evening that for a little while the caution which usually dogged her footsteps had disappeared, leaving her like any other girl of eighteen. It was the first real party that Star had ever attended. Given by Shelia Bennet, whose father, one of the most important judges in the state, believed in public school for his children. Every member of the graduating class had been invited.

The comfortable, old-fashioned Bennet home with the dignified, smiling judge and his wife, who was Star's conception of an ideal mother, slender and gracious, was gay with June roses. A three-piece orchestra, seated beneath the broad turn of the stairway, provided dance music. Rugs were rolled up, leaving shining, polished floors over which drifted the soft-colored party dresses. There were laughter shaded lights and happy voices. "Just like the movies," Star thought, enchanted. Best of all she, Star Bright, seemed to belong. The girls included her in their casual friendly greetings and the boys, with whom she had always been reserved, begged for dances with an eagerness which surprised her.

She had no idea why. Knowing that she could never invite young people with a cultured background to her home, she held herself aloof from every one. But tonight the music and excitement must have gone to her head. The dancing lessons that Mamie had forced her to take, even when the grocery bill went unpaid, gave Star self-confidence, but being utterly without conceit she had no conception of the picture she made.

"Who is the girl in white?" the judge asked his wife, who in turn asked their daughter.

"Her name is Star Bright," Shelia answered. "Isn't she lovely? Nobody knows much about her except that she has been taking a business course at school."

"She is beautiful," Mrs. Bennet admitted. "Such blue eyes, with that soft dark hair and pale skin, are very striking."

The judge did not reply but his gaze followed the graceful figure. Shelia might not be as pretty, but thank God her eyes were not steeped in sadness like those of her schoolmate. How could a girl as young as that have acquired such an expression, he wondered. It made her seem older than her laughing, carefree companions. It set her apart from them, wrapping her in mystery and a sort of glamour.

He had seen that look before on faces of those doomed from the beginning by environment or circumstances they had not had the strength to overcome. It was the expression of those who hadn't a chance and knew it. But Star's face held no bitterness. Life had not sapped her courage yet.

"Darling," laughed his wife, "will you stop staring at that femme fatale and pay attention to some of our other guests?"

"What's that? Who's staring?" he muttered, thinking, "That's exactly the phrase I was hunting for. That's what she is. A woman marked by fate . . ." It rather provoked him that his wife should have been the one to hit upon it.

* * *

Meanwhile Star, entirely unconscious of the interest she was rousing, did not feel at all unhappy. Life seemed so simple at this moment, uncomplicated and gay, as she danced with one another, fitting her steps to theirs, changing gracefully from the rhythm of the good dancer to the awkward movements of the beginner. But she discovered as the evening progressed that there was one whose timing seemed as natural to her as her own. Leslie Reed had been in her class for two years. He had asked her for a date once, but, on the defensive as always, Star refused. He was one of Sheila's crowd. His father was a prominent doctor in the city. Leslie was an only child just as Star was, but with a difference in background she felt with that sensitiveness which was her curse.

Tonight, however, it didn't seem to matter. She felt that she fitted into this cultured, harmonious atmosphere and in some marvelous fashion, as yet unrevealed to her, she would escape from the sordid ugliness of her own environment.

Leslie, made bolder by her unusual response, returned to dance with her again and again, cutting in on every one else, finally victoriously claiming her as his supper partner. There was much gigling and chattering over the sandwiches and fruit cup. For the first time in her life, part of that inner group which exists in every school, no matter how democratic, Star found them amazingly kind. As Leslie's partner she was included in their jokes and banter as if she belonged. For that one dizzy hour she believed that she did, knowing in her heart that she was deceiving herself. But after all they had graduated now. This was their farewell party. She would probably never see any of them again.

"I'm taking you home," Leslie said.

It would have seemed silly to object, and how reassuring it was to find him waiting at the foot of the stairs where they said good night to their hosts. Star thought the judge looked at her rather curiously. Perhaps he was surprised to see the best-looking boy in the class accompanying her. She was very proud of Leslie as he stepped to her side.

"All ready?" he asked matter-of-factly.

It was more like a movie than ever she thought as they walked sedately down the stone steps and entered his car. A graduation present, Leslie explained. And Star, who had paid for the dress she wore by odd jobs of typing, said, "How nice! It certainly is lovely."

"Just like my Dad's," Leslie continued. "The one he drives to the hospital, I mean. Mother uses the sedan."

Three cars in one family, Star thought, impressed, but she said nothing. She had learned long ago to conceal astonishment or any other emotion. She sat beside him quietly happy as Leslie confided his plans for going to the university.

"But that's not until fall. Usually mother drags me to the country for the summer but this year they have promised I can stay in town. We'll have some swell fun together. That is if you feel the same way about it."

Star answered recklessly, "Of course!"

He patted the hands which lay folded on her lap.

"Isn't it funny how well we danced together? As if we'd been doing it all our lives. Well, it isn't my fault that we haven't."

* * *

She should have stopped him then. Should have warned him that they had nothing in common and never would have, but she couldn't spoil it. Maybe some way these plans of his could come true after all. Maybe this was the beginning of a new state of affairs—that break for which she had prayed so long!

"What are you going to be doing this summer, Star?"

"I'm going to try to get a job," she admitted.

"Good idea!" he approved. "Then you'll have to stay here, too."

As if she could leave. As if there were any place else for her to go. She had given him the address of her apartment house without apology and if he were surprised he did not show it.

"So this is where you live? I've often wondered," he said.

"You needn't come in with me."

"I'm certainly not going to let you go in alone," he objected.

Unable to confess the reason for her reluctance, afraid he might think she was ashamed of the shabby building, Star permitted him to accompany her.

"There isn't any elevator. You'll have to walk," she warned.

* * *

All the way up the three flights she tried to reassure herself, but the premonition of evil which never entirely left her began to flutter like a storm signal in her heart.

"Not tonight, God, please! Let her be nice just this once."

"Where's your key?" Leslie asked as they stopped in front of her door.

"I haven't any. Thank you for bringing me home."

"How you going to get in?"

"The door is unlocked," she told him.

"But it isn't," he insisted, trying it. They would have to ring.

"Don't wait," she urged nervously, but Leslie said concerned, "Do you think I'll leave you out here alone?" He did not add "in this dump" but she could guess how disreputable it must look to him.

He rang for her, touching the button lightly, but there was no answer. Star's heart beat thickly. That meant her mother was asleep.

Leslie said, "Gee, you don't suppose anything is wrong. Aren't they expecting you?"

"There is no one here but my mother."

"Well, it's too bad to waken her but it will have to be done," he said pressing the bell. At first there was no response, then they heard an uncertain movement inside.

"She's coming now," Star said, anxious for him to leave.

Leslie took her hand she held out to him, saying, "I'll call you tomorrow. Okay?"

Panic stricken, she nodded. But before she could push him away the door opened. Mamie Bright Delevan stood before them. Frowsy and cross, prematurely grey but with eyes as blue as her daughter's.

"What's the idea?" she grumbled. "Standing out here ringing the door bell?"

Star made no effort to introduce him and Leslie fled with a pitying glance and a hurried "Good night!"

"Good-bye!" Star said closing the door.

It had ended almost as soon as it had begun, she thought. Well, she should have known better.

"Why didn't you introduce your boy friend?" the older woman demanded belligerently. When Star did not reply she added, "I know why. You're ashamed of your mother."

"Oh, Mother, why can't you act like other mothers?"

Mamie replied, "That's gratitude for you. I work my fingers to the bone to give you dancing lessons. Spend the best years of my life giving you advantages so you can go on the stage and now what do I get for it?"

"I don't want to go on the stage," Star reminded her. "But there's no use to talk about it now. Let's go to bed."

* * *

Still grumbling, Mamie retired into the bedroom she shared with her husband. The contrast between Mamie and Sheila's mother and father made Star cringe. And she had let Leslie Rood bring her home and make plans to see her again. She must have been crazy, she thought, entering her own room.

It opened upon a court and was so small that there was no space for anything but a bed and dresser, but the curtains at the window were sheer and white. The spread, in dull blue, Star had bought herself with money she had made typing manuscripts for a teacher with literary aspirations.

It was a shabby little room but it was the only place in the apartment that was orderly. Even the closet, where were hung the cheap little dresses she wore to school, was as clean as soap and water could make it. On the dresser were her cosmetics (lipstick, powder, and a jar of cleansing cream) and a small framed protograph of a distinguished-looking man which had been cut from a newspaper. In vain Mamie had tried to find out who this was and why her daughter had framed it. But Star knew better than to tell her mother that it was her own conception of the father she remembered only vaguely.

Mohammed In the Ancient Scriptures

JESUS' PROPHECIES

There are also prophecies by other Israelite Prophets, but for the sake of brevity we will refer to only one (as briefly as possible), by the last of the Israelite prophets, that is to say, by Jesus—the founder of true christianity — the last of the great religions before Islam, which runs:

"I am not sent but the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 15:24).

"If you love me, keep my commands. . . and He shall give another comforter, that he may abide with you forever; even the Spirit of Truth" (John 14:15-17.) . . . shall teach all things." (Ibid 14:26.)

"I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit when he, the Spirit of Truth, is come, he will guide you into all truths" (John 16:12-13).

All these prophetic words clearly predict the advent of another prophet after Jesus. The terms of the prophecy do not warrant the conclusion that they are applicable to the Holy Ghost (Gabriel). "If I go not away, the comforter will not come unto you," are plain words and unambiguous. The New Testament says that John was filled with the Holy Grost even before he was born, and speaks of Jesus himself as receiving the Holy Ghost in the form of a dove. Thus, the Holy Ghost was wont to visit men before Jesus as well as in his own time. To what, then, is the reference in the words, "If I go not away the comforter will not come unto you"? Surely not the Holy Ghost; for it would be sacrilege to assume for a moment that Jesus was without the Holy Ghost. The Holy Quran, at least credits the companions of the Holy Prophet Muhammad with such company in clear terms: "And He aided them with the Holy Spirit from Himself." (58: 22).

The words Holy Ghost, in the prophecy, if they be not an interpolation, are intended to signify that the Promised One, the World and the Last of the Prophets of God, would have such an inseparable union with the Holy Ghost that his advent might be taken, metaphorically of course, as the coming of the Holy Ghost himself. There are other words, too, in the prophecy which are solely applicable to the Prophet Muhammad, and the characteristic features set forth therein are one and all, to be found in him. "That he may abide with you forever," indicates that there would be no prophet after the Promised One, and this is precisely what the Holy Quran says of Muhammad: "The last of the Prophets." Again, "He shall teach you all things" says the prophecy, and the Holy Quran telling of the dispensation of the Prophet Muhammad replies: "This day I have made perfect for you your religion." The Promised One is called the "Spirit of Truth" in the prophecy, to which the Holy Quran responds in the words: "Say, the Truth has come and falsehood has vanished."

Jesus was also a man and died like other men, yet he spoke of himself as a comforter. That the other comforter to abide forever. "It is perposterous" says a Christian theologian, "to claim that Muhammad is the comforter, as the comforter will be a spirit, and this Spirit will not be seen, nor can be known by the world and shall be in the disciples." But John the Baptist came in the spirit and power of Elias. And Jesus referring to himself as a comforter, does not mean that he was a Spirit or a Ghost, and he, yet was in the disciples and the disciples in him.

The Rev. M. Gray claims that this prophecy made by Jesus was fulfilled at the Pentecost. But where was this Spirit of Truth at this time that he did not guide the early christians into all truth?

Another Christian theologian says that this Spirit of Truth is the Holy Spirit. "God is a Spirit. . ." (John 4:24).

If this is true how can there be another person called the Spirit of God who is also God? And if, as alleged, he is God the Infinite and Eternal Being it certainly passes one's understanding why he "shall not speak of himself" and what that higher source is whence he should "hear" what he should speak."

Paul comes to Ephesus and, finding certain disciples there asked them whether they have "received the Holy Ghost" since they believe. Their reply is "We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost." (Acts 19 1-2), and this throws a flood of light upon the matter.

". . . the Spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God" (1 Cor. 2:10) which unequivocally show that the Holy Spirit is not omniscient for omniscience obviates necessity of searching—and consequently is not God.

As for the verse (Math. 28: 19), the first translator of the Bible into English considers a forgery. The verse (1 John 5 7) too is admittedly a forgery, in proof of which nothing more need be mentioned than that Dr. Moffatt had expunged it from his New English Translation of the New Testament.

The Quran, which is most vement in its condemnation of the doctline which teaches that "God is the third three" (Quran 5:73), supports this sane and natural conclusion when it too says "and . . . I (God) have made him (man) complete and breathed into him of My Spirit. . ." (15:29).

The Spirit of God is the invisible power of God working in God's chosen ones, and never a third person of a triune God. Similarly a comparison of Luke 11:13 where Christ speaks of the Heavenly Father (Creator of the Universe) as giving "the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him" with its parallel passage, Math. 7:11, where the word Holy Spirit as replaced by the words good things shows that the words "Holy Spirit" here stand only for the grace or gift the Almighty showers on those who are after it, for says He, "I answer the prayer of the suppliant when he calls on Me." (Quran 2:186).

THE QURAN

It was the comprehensiveness and integrity of the Quranic revelation which led the greatest of German poets, Goethe, to say: "You see this teaching never fails; with all our systems, we cannot go, and generally speaking no man can go, farther than that." And it was the Quran's constant appeal to reason and experience which made the same genius exclaim: "If this is Islam, then every thinking man among us is, in fact, a Muslim."

The difference between the imagery of the Bible and the cognitive content of the indicatory precepts of the Quran is a difference of thought-mode: it is the difference between the artist and scientist. And where the one is history, i.e., the experience and actions of man as they recorded them through the centuries, the other is a philosophy of history, i.e., the interpretation of that self-same history in the experience of a single ego.

(In reading the Quran it must be remembered that the "basic principles of universal import," revealed therein, are interspersed with a whole social fabric of ready-made judgments—applicable only to the historical and geographical environment into which Muhammad was born.) — The Islamic Mission, Mansfield, Ohio.

PROPHECIES IN HINDU SCRIPTURES

"In the Hindu Scriptures also there are many prophecies touching the Holy Prophet Muhammad. A few of these are in the Puranas, two of them in the Panishads and others in the Vedas. Of the Puranic prophecies, that in the Bhavishya Purana is the clearest of all. It gives even the name and the main attributes of the Prophet, and for this reason, the Arya Samaj has tried to cast doubt on the authenticity of the passage, their only argument being to the effect that it contains a reference to the Prophet. According to Sanatanist Pandits and the vast bulk of Hindus, however, it is considered quite authentic. The prophecy runs as follows:—

Just then a man with the epithet "Illiterate," Muhammad by name, and an inhabitant of Arabia, appeared with his companions . . . O denizen of Arabia and master of the world, to thee is my adoration! O thou who hast found many ways and means to destroy all the devils of the world, to thee is my adoration, O pure one, from among the illiterates, O sinless one, the spirit of truth and absolute master, to thee is my adoration. Accept me at thy feet.

"This is the spiritual illumination which the author of the Bhavishya Purana obtained and he described, accordingly the coming of Prophet Muhammad. 1 Bhavishya Purana, Para 3, Kanda, 3, Adhyaya 3, Sholokas 5, 7, 8.

CONCLUSION

"We have examined some very clear prophecies in the Parsi Scriptures, and in the Hindu, Jewish, Budhist and Christian sacred books, and we have a very serious question to consider if we are, in the least, religiously disposed.

. . "That an unlettered man, knowing nothing of foreign languages, should say something that has never been said before by seer or prophet; that students of comparative religion should confirm the truth of that statement, and that a whole chain of prophets down all the ages and among all people, thousands of years ago, speaking different languages, should all give in their Scriptures the happy tidings of the advent of a particular man in a particular land, accompanied by no common events of everyday occurrence, but by signs beyond the power of man to accomplish; and, above all, that the teachings of the Universally Promised Prophet should be actually without a parallel for the unification and brotherhood of the whole mankind—do not make all fair-minded men who lay any claim at all to wisdom or even common sense put their heads together and ponder?"

STOCKS CLING TO GAINS IN HIGHER MARKET

Allied Chemical, Du Pont, and General Motors in Van of General Advance.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks clung doggedly to their recently-won higher ground today, although some of the leaders slipped slightly.

Yesterday's rising trend continued for such shares as Allied Chemical, DuPont, Bendix and General Motors.

Among the fractionally lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, and General Electric.

Bonds and commodities were uneven in thin dealings. Foreign bourses were fairly steady with American stocks displaying firm tendencies.

* * *

Although General Motors sold 60,000 shares of Bendix common to four investment trusts, it was understood the motor company had no intention of seriously weakening its power in the management of Bendix.

* * *

The current sharp improvement in copper sales and reports of new inquiries from abroad for steel were interpreted by several Wall Street commentators as "straws in the wind" of market sentiment, leading to yesterday's rises in steel and metal stocks and in the price of wheat.

Although the financial district in the main regarded the British government's mobilization of 60 British-held American stocks as beneficial to the orderly liquidation of such securities, the view was expressed by some that British holders of stocks not on the original list might speed their selling in anticipation of further sequestration.

CLOSED TOMORROW

All major security and commodity markets in the United States will be closed tomorrow, Feb. 22, in observance of Washington's birthday. Livestock markets in various sections of the country, however, will remain open as usual.

Civic Groups, Students Hear Former Stock Exchange Official Tuesday.

BUCYRUS—Coming to Bucyrus at the invitation of three Bucyrus service clubs, Cameron Beck, former personnel director of the New York Stock exchange and speaker of international prominence, addressed three meetings Tuesday.

In an assembly of Bucyrus high school students, Mr. Beck spoke Tuesday afternoon in the high school auditorium. At 6:30 he addressed a joint meeting of the sponsoring clubs, Bucyrus Rotary, Y's Men and Lions clubs, at St. John's Reformed church. Punctuality and honesty were stressed by the speaker as two necessary requirements for success.

"Plan your lives; have a purpose; practice preserverence and have a passion for right living" were the thoughts left with his audiences in his two evening appearances.

COUNCIL KILLS BUCYRUS LEVY FOR SWIM POOL

Rejects Proposal to Raise Funds; Give Blanket O. K. on WPA Project.

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus city council in regular session Tuesday night considered two major issues, rejecting one and giving tentative approval to the second.

Council turned thumbs down on a resolution designed to place before the voters at the May primary the swimming pool bond issue. The resolution provided that the pool be located on the site adjoining Harmon playground. No estimated amount to be expended for the project was stated in the legislation.

Council approved a blanket WPA project providing for replacement of the city's water mains and repairs to water lines and the city's sanitary sewer system and grading and improvements at the City hospital, Harmon playground, city sewage treatment grounds and Aumiller park. The project was approved with the understanding that all or any part of the project could be rejected later by council after WPA approval has been given.

Members of the finance committee were instructed to meet with the city auditor to determine what money would be available for proceeding with the projects.

In rejecting the swimming pool resolution, Councilman Harry Carle, chairman of the finance committee, assured council that another similar resolution would be presented at the next meeting.

Action on the resolution was taken after council had heard remarks in favor of and against the proposed swimming pool site by interested citizens. J. W. Loomis, former president of council, expressed himself as opposing the northern site and pointed out the advantages of the Aumiller park site.

Councilman Walter Michael remarked that the controversy over a site for the proposed pool had defeated the project two years ago.

Meet

J. Harry McGregor

Republican Nominee for CONGRESS from the 17th District

I am grateful for my nomination. While the time between now and the Special Congressional Election on February 27th is very short. I am doing my best to meet the people of this district and learn at first hand the program they want me to follow in Congress. Since I cannot possibly meet you all, I take this means of declaring the principles for which I stand and the things which a lifetime residence in this district has convinced me are for the general good.

A prominent speaker recently said "The American people are tired of life on the flying trapeze." I am sure that reflects the majority opinion of the 17th district. You want the Federal Government run on a common sense basis: — to stop wholesale deficit spending and return the nation in an orderly manner to a pay-as-you-go basis, as Ohio is doing right now. You do not like one man rule — nor anything resembling it. You want aid for the needy administered locally, without the waste of domineering federal dictation. You know that unemployment can be much relieved by giving business large and small a chance, instead of keeping it out on a limb. You resent regimenting the farmer by the heavy hand of the government. You want fair play for labor without invitation to un-American class hatreds. Above all else, you want the government to do no act and adopt no policy which might draw us into war.

These things for which I believe all of you stand, will be my guide if you elect me to Congress. My record is an open book: if you like it, I shall appreciate your vote.

Signed

J. HARRY McGREGOR

CHAILLAUX HAS PLAN TO SOLVE NATIONS' ILLS

Legion Speaker Would Bar All Immigration for 10 Years, Deport Undesirables.

He said eight million aliens have entered this country legally since 1920 adding greatly to our economic problem, and the department of labor doesn't know where most of them are.

"If we can' solve our own employment problem, why should we take on the problem of others?" he asked.

He said he was opposed to the United States giving "too much help to any European country as long as we have so many enemies to fight in our own ranks."

Criticizing England for not going to the aid of Finland, he pointed out that "England was pretty handy there and could have put a million men into the battle against Russia in almost no time."

He indicted American parents and adults for their "failure to train young people in Citzenship" and blamed the two million so-called juvenile delinquents in the nation on that neglect.

"Because," he said, "it is just as essential to have a progressive program as to tear down the other man's program," Chaillaux told of the work of the American Legion in sponsoring Boy Scout work, "Boys' State, junior baseball teams and other projects to educate young people in citizenship and leadership.

Cites Need of Leadership.

"If we can organize leadership in every college and high school in America, we don't need to worry about the safety of our government or the crack-pots who try to warp the minds of youth," he asserted.

"Our government is the biggest business in America, yet we use our educational system to train youth for everything but how to run the government," Chaillaux said.

"We expect the government to run itself, and if we happen to get a crooked politician in public office, it's because we put him there or did nothing about it. We must put government on a basis with our private business.

"The Legion believes that if we are going to preserve individual liberty we must teach the young people how to govern and to fight the alien forces that would undermine our democracy. If we don't a clever mob psychologist will promise 'economic security' for your civil liberties."

Outlining the youth program of the American Legion, Chaillaux said its aim is to organize youthful leadership among the boys "across the railroad tracks" as well as those in better homes and to demand that every college in the country have a system to train men in government methods.

Praising the Dies committee, which the Legion helped to bring about, he said its investigation exposed for the American people the real sources of some of the organizations that have sprung up in the nation in the last few years.

He said the Dies investigation had shown the Workers Alliance as a "front for the Communist party which breeds ill will among workers and takes money from the meager pay envelopes of WPA workers."

"The huge majority of its members don't know they are contributing to the Communist cause, but their national leader has been a Communist for years."

The Communists have been busy with American youth too, he asserted, backing such organizations a. the American Youth Congress, American Student union, and American League of Peace and Democracy.

"The story of these groups was told in the Dies committee report, and at the recent American Youth Congress convention in Washington, a member who proposed the condemnation of Russia for invading Finland was thrown out because the group was protecting its parent, the Soviet government," Chaillaux continued.

He pointed out that the Dies investigation led to the arrest and conviction of Fritz Kuhn, the German-American bund leader, Earl Browder, national Communist leader.

"The majority of the bund agencies were organized to sabotage our defense set-up for Nazi Germany," he added.

During the forum, Chaillaux engaged in a discussion with John Sparks, president of the Richland County Workers Alliance, who denied that there are any Communists in the organization in Mansfield.

Chaillaux said he could prove that the national Alliance is headed by Communists and urged Sparks to "organize a local group to help the unemployed if you want the backing of your city officials and leaders."

"I think you're right. Thanks," Sparks said, and sat down.

Among his rapid-fire answers in the forum period were these:

"There are Communistic organizations in about 300 of the 1,486 American colleges and universities, inspired both by Communist leaders and a few left-wing professors. Few high schools outside of New York, Chicago, and the larger cities have such organizations.

"Economic security and better living standards are the answer to the American Communists' problem.

"The average American couldn't answer 40 per cent of the questions asked aliens who seek citizenship, but there are free schools for the foreign-born to learn about our government.

"Every person should have the American right to freedom of speech and press, but this right stops when he uses this privilege to destroy the government that grants it.

"I'm absolutely neutral. I don't care who licks Russia and Germany just so it's not us.

Chaillaux was introduced by R. B. Gardner, Ohio department commander of the American Legion. The meeting was sponsored by McVey post of the American Legion which brought Chaillaux back to Mansfield almost three years to the day of his first visit.

The meeting was in charge of R. M. James, commander of McVey post. Legionnaire Kent Oberlin was master of ceremonies and introduced J. Harry McGregor and Byron B. Ashbrook, Republican and Democratic candidates for congress in the 17th district; Mayor William J. Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton.

Before the address, the McVey post drum corps and the Senior high school band gave a half-hour program. The Legion color guard advanced the flag to the stage from the rear of the theater as the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." Msgr. R. C. Goebel, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, gave the invocation.

DEMS STIRRED BY RALLY PLAN

what the plans are," Ashbrook said.

Capt. Harding, who had been campaigning for Ashbrook throughout the 17th district, denied that he planned the meeting or sent out an announcement of it.

At Kent, however, Davey's secretary said he had received a personal invitation Monday from Ashbrook to speak here Saturday. Davey is in Chicago, his secretary said, and he was awaiting the outcome of today's caucus here before making further plans to come to Mansfield to speak.

Davey also had planned to speak in behalf of Ashbrook's candidacy in Ashland Saturday, at Newark and Coshocton Friday, and Delaware and Mt. Vernon Sunday.

Davey is expected to announce soon for the gubernatorial nomination, but it was understood he will wait until after the 17th district congressional election next Tuesday to make his announcement.

While the Democratic leaders were trying to straighten out their difficulties, Republicans went ahead with plans to bring J. Harry McGregor, Ashbrook's opponent for the congressional post, to Mansfield for a meeting at G. O. P. headquarters Saturday night.

McGregor today had received the endorsement of the War Veterans' Republican club in Mansfield.

The club's resolution said: "We endorse Mr. McGregor, an ex-service man, to succeed the 'Soldier's Friend,' Bill Ashbrook, and urge ex-service men to back Mr. McGregor." The endorsement was signed by W. C. Hegnauer, secretary of the club.

Both McGregor and Ashbrook were in the city last night to meet party leaders and were introduced at the American Legion lecture at the Madison theater. Following the meeting here, Ashbrook spoke at a rally at the Hartman school in Jackson township near Shelby.

Sawyer Insists He's 'Bona Fide' Candidate.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — National Committeeman Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati today became the "favorite son" candidate of Ohio Democrats for the presidential nomination—a role that Sen. Vic Donahey had declined on the grounds that it made him nothing more than a "stalking horse" for a third term nomination for President Roosevelt.

Despite Sawyer's announcemnet that he is a "bona fide" candidate for the presidential nomination, the honor is his only in name, for a meeting of the state central and executive committees last Saturday bound prospective organization delegates to the Democratic convention for Mr. Roosevelt, provided he runs.

Sawyer said he did not believe that a primary contest for delegates would result. It had been reported from Washington immediately after Donahey declined the "favorite son" post, that friends of Vice President John N. Garner would enter his name and begin lining up candidates for delegates.

"As for the entrance of outsiders as candidates in Ohio, this is a privilege accorded to anyone by the laws of our state," Sawyer said.

"I do not believe that any other candidate will enter, but if anyone does enter, we will demonstrate in devastating fashion that the two committees in their action last Saturday represented the sentiments of the Democrats of this state."

Although Sawyer announced late yesterday that Sen. Donahey had agreed to serve as a delegate-at-large to the convention under the program agreed upon by the state central and executive committees, it was learned that Donahey wired him a point-blank refusal.

The Sawyer announcement previously had caused surprise as appearing to be in conflict with the Donahey position in declining the "favorite son" post.

Sweden's Parliament Rejects Aid to Finns.

(By International News Service)

STOCKHOLM — Sweden's parliament, turning a deaf ear to a storm of demands for more aid for Finland, today gave Premier Per Albin Hansson's government a vote of confidence on the foreign policy issue.

While parliament backed Hansson's refusal to grant direct assistance to Finland, the government took measures to increase non-military help striving to appease the activists who insisted on more vigorous measures against the Soviets.

Ironically, parliament's vote coincided with the war's first Soviet air raid on Swedish territory, when seven Red army bombers attacked the Swedish Lapland village of Pajala. The village, however, was probably mistaken for a Finnish locality, as it lies only 6½ miles across the border.

An organization known as the Committee for Freedom of the North submitted a petition which stated:

"If Finland crashes, Sweden's own life is threatened. The decisive moment has arrived.

"Finland's cause is ours. The Finnish front must be held and helped by Swedish assistance. Intervention from states outside the north would threaten to make our country a scene of war.

Appeal to Youth.

"We maintain that freedom and peace are best maintained by giving our own help so vigorously that any other aid will be unnecessary. We appeal to Swedish youths to fill the gaps in the Finnish army, thus serving the freedom and future of the north countries."

(Yesterday Swedish and Soviet diplomatic sources revealed in London to International News Service that Sweden's refusal to send direct military and to Finland was the result of a Russian promise that the U.S.S.R. would not invade Sweden after the conquest of Finland. This promise was conveyed to Swedish Foreign Minister Christian Guenther by Russia's famous woman ambassadress, Mme. Alexandra Kollontay.)

Pledge of Allegiance To Flag.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Things Every American Should Know

THE SOUND doctrines of real Americanism were well presented in Mansfield yesterday by Homer L. Chaillaux, national director of the Americanism program of the American Legion.

Chaillaux is not only a forceful speaker but he is fortunate in the possession of a magnetic personality, an intense enthusiasm and a background of information on the activities of subversive groups which places him in position to enlighten audiences on a subject that is of great importance to every loyal American citizen.

While a vast majority of the people of this country are firm in their support of the principles upon which this government is founded, there has been an inclination on the part of many to take democracy for granted and to give little thought to the danger of condoning the development of minority groups representing alien isms of various sorts—communism, naziism, fascism, socialism, or whatever label may have been given a wide variety of unamerican activities.

Whatever freedom of speech and press may have been accorded the disciples of imported "isms," under the broad protection of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, it appears that the time is ripe for a better understanding on the part of minority malcontents that they are living under a form of government which has been established for the United States of America and that the millions of patriotic citizens who constitute the overwhelming majority in this country regard themselves as quite capable of bringing about further improvements without intervention by any European dictator or radical agitator.

By his revelations in connection with the work of the Dies committee, and other information which he gives in the course of his talks, Chaillaux is making a valuable contribution to better understanding of Americanism, and the American Legion deserves much credit for its leadership in this important work. It is regrettable that all citizens of every community in the United States cannot hear this speaker in such addresses as he gave at an interclub meeting yesterday noon, at Senior high school in the afternoon and at Madison theater last evening.

First President's Big Job

DURING February—the birth month of two great presidents and some other notable Americans—it is natural that citizens' thoughts should turn back more than usual over the nation's history. Reading again of the life and work of George Washington and the bold and brilliant men whom we now call the "founding fathers," there is temptation to believe that all the great men, true patriots and enlightened statesmen lived then. We think things would be better now if only we had such men to conduct public affairs.

Reading further, we discover that Washington and Lincoln were as severely criticised and violently opposed as any lesser presidents since their day. We find that, in addition to their native talents, they became great men because of their devotion to their country, their unselfish public service, their steadfastness of purpose.

In Washington's day a new nation was born. He saw the perils it faced. His great work was to guide and protect the young republic from them and to set its future course. He did that job well. The help and encouragement we derive today from his life and work are not dependent on specific measures applied to definite problems, but on the spirit and intelligence with which the problems were approached.

Another Food Institute

HERE IT IS AGAIN! Another of those Food Institutes which have been so popular with Mansfield women for the past five years.

Starting this morning and continuing through Friday, the fine art of cookery is being demonstrated at the Ohio theater in a way that is not only intensely interesting but that will also give homemakers a lot of new ideas in the preparation and serving of satisfying and nourishing food.

Gas is the fuel used for cooking in thousands of Mansfield homes and the all-gas kitchen being used in the demonstration each of the three mornings of the institute is not only attractive in appearance but offers opportunity to observe methods of efficient and economical operation of modern gas ranges.

The habit of regular attendance at Food Institute sessions has already been formed by many Mansfield women. Those who have not yet formed the habit will find it well worth while.

Mental Hazard in Politics

USUALLY rated as an asset in this country, intelligence may be dangerous in public life. The point comes up in connection with a young man now aspiring to the presidency.

"Dewey is a man of very rare ability," observes a Washington columnist. "He seems to suspect it himself. He has not acquired the guile to make himself appear less superior mentally than he really is. That steel-trap mind of his can be a political handicap." And another observer complains that Dewey "impresses one as being intolerant of mediocrity in a country where there's a lot of that."

Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote a poem the moral of which was, "Never dare to be as funny as you can." The moral for politicians is, "Never dare to be as brilliant as you can."

Private Employment Preferred

HERE'S another example of a WPA worker who is not satisfied to "live off the government." He has put up a big sign on his front porch reading as follows:

"Notice—I will give my first week's pay to any person aiding me in obtaining steady employment."

He says he'll take any job that will enable him to take decent care of his family. And very likely he has found one by this time.

When a Lansdown (Pa.) schoolhouse was damaged by fire recently many report cards were consumed—much to the relief of some of the pupils who were thus excused from explaining.

The honesty of Abraham Lincoln is so much admired that it's a wonder he hasn't more imitators in this trait.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam, who holds more mortgages on American homes than anyone in history, has filed a report on how he is taking care of them that indicates he will be handling "slow paper" for a long time.

This report covers only the Home Owners Loan Corporation, which began in 1933 to absorb 1,017,000 mortgages that were sour. The report does not include such agencies as the Federal Housing Administration, which currently is insuring mortgages on many new houses.

HOLC began bailing out distressed home owners at the bottom of the depression. It put $3,093,000,000 into the home-rescue business, about $3,000 a home.

As a mortgage holder, Uncle Sam is a softie. He mingles relief with business. He has to, or he would have four or five times as many dispossessed homes on his hands as he has now. But even so he has foreclosed or is foreclosing on 165,000 homes. The rate of foreclosure is increasing. How fast it will increase, says John H. Fahey, chairman of the agency, depends largely on economic conditions of the next few years.

* * *

It's Good Business.

"SINCE the passage of the Mead amendment authorizing the extension of loans to a period not exceeding 25 years," says Fahey, "our field offices have been reviewing all cases in which foreclosure seemed inevitable in an attempt to relieve to the utmost the burden of these borrowers and prevent every possible foreclosure . . .

"It is merely a question of wise social service in going the limit, within reason, to prevent foreclosures and to save these homes for these people. We ought to prevent every foreclosure we can, just as a sound business proposition."

Nevertheless, foreclosures go on at the rate of more than a thousand a month. Just now they have hit a low of 800 a month, but Fahey estimates they will amount to 14,000 in 1940.

Losses on foreclosures average about $900 a home, for a total loss of $66,896,000 on those already resold.

Ordinarily HOLC does not take a deficiency judgment against foreclosed home owners. There are exceptions. Any borrower who has been a pain in the neck to the organization is likely to be pursued by a deficiency judgment.

* * *

We're Responsible People.

HOWEVER, says Fahey, "the experiences of the HOLC has demonstrated all over again that the great mass of the American people respect their obligations and will meet them, if you give them half a chance.

Nevertheless, in the cases of the borrowers with accounts still outstanding, HOLC has to pet along 252,000 to keep them out of trouble. That is nearly half the number outstanding. Most of these are always in trouble over their affairs and must be picked up and straightened out every few months. Others bought houses far too fancy for their purses during the boom. A fair number chisel and squirm until the axe gets them.

So, as it stands now, the government has bought 1,017,000 bad mortgages. Of these, 62,485 borrowers have paid off all their debts. Another 165,000 were foreclosed. Fahey says 789,500 accounts still are on the books. That totals 1,016,985. We are short 15 homes, or mortgages, or borrowers. Don't ask us where they are. Ask Fahey. They probably got lost in an "approximately."

Health And Diet

Relaxing Even While At Work.

—By DR. CLENDENING

What definite good comes from relaxation treatment?

Relaxation is advocated by Jacobson as of considerable value in functional nervous disorders. I agree with one of my readers, H. F. D., Plainfield, N. J., who makes this suggestion for us:

"Every book or article I have read on the subject of relaxation misses the point entirely in that they always speak of 'periods of relaxation.' While these 'periods' are valuable, what the world needs instruction about is continuous relaxation while at work. Don't put more effort in your work than is just necessary to accomplish the task. For example, don't put ten pounds of energy working when you have one or two pounds to lift. This attitude should take effect immediately the day's work is confronted, and should be kept in mind during the entire day. Once this mental attitude is acquired and the habit fixed, the most amazing results as to the postponement of fatigue ensue. Few persons think of the difference between doing a thing rapidly and doing it hurriedly. Rapidly implies relaxation with corresponding accuracy and skill. Hurriedly implies tension, generally mental confusion, and poor result with attending dissatisfaction. Elbert Hubbard of the Roycroft Shops, East Aurora, N. Y., was the most 'relaxed worker' I ever knew. The amount of work he did all the time was simply prodigious, yet he never seemed to tire, and never had a sick day in his whole life. Actually, in our everyday life there are not many times when really heavy work confronts us, but when it does, all the more reason for our approaching the job relaxed, mentally and physically. Tension is ruination in the end, and as to 'worry' why not, as Scarlet O'Hara did, 'do that tomorrow'?"

How do you prevent scruffiness of the skin in the winter time?

Winter dermatitis is a condition in which the skin, especially of the exposed parts of the body, such as the hands and the corners of the mouth, crack. The general surface is rough and scruffy. The French call this "laundress' dermatitis" and it undoubtedly is associated with the use of too much soap and water. Alkaline substances in soap induce alteration of the skin which sensitizes it to cold and also to other substances which produce eczema and scruffiness.

Treatment is obvious. It consists of cutting down on the amount of hand-washing in the winter time, and in the use of toilet lanolin liberally applied at night before going to bed.

Listen, World!

Concerning Generosity And Its Dangers.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

GENEROSITY is another one of those things apt to hand you a painful surprise.

Way back when you were five, Moma told you to share your candy with little Jimmy. Then little Jimmy would love you and Mama 'n' Papa would be proud of you. For everyone loved and was proud of generous little boys.

That was your sales talk on Generosity, and it went over big with you. Naturally, all your instincts were against sharing candy or anything else with anybody. But you hankered for popularity—and applause quite as much at five as you do at forty-five. And if you could get all that pleasing publicity just by divvying up on a li'l ole lollipop—

So with both eyes on the profits, you decided to be generous. But the years have brought a gradual disillusion. You're still sharing lollipops as Mama said you should. But do the folks who get your lollipops love you for your kindly act? And do the onlookers praise you for your noble deeds?

Quite contrary!

Instead of being grateful because you have given them one lollipop, the recipients of your favor are usually mad because you have three left. Why should you have lollipops to give away when they haven't? Why should they have to be grateful to you when they're really a lot smarter than you and would have millions of lollipops themselves if they'd only had your breaks?

So, while outwardly gushing and grinning and tell you what a grand guy you are, "little Jimmy" is inwardly hating and envying you. Be generous and buy yourself an enemy!

And how do the bystanders, who watch you go through your Big Act, feel about it? Mama had said they'd admire and praise you. Do they? Not so's you'd notice it! Generally they think you're a sap and say so. And they, too, are secretly mad at you. Not for one second do they believe in the pure philanthropy of your deed. No sir-ee, you're just trying to Show Off!

* * *

SO, if you're looking for popularity, generosity is one of the worse investments you can make. It will buy you little save grief. And yet—

If you're willing to undertake generosity as you would any other great adventure—

Facing its certain dangers and discomforts, realizing its limitations and handicaps—

And knowing that you must pay as heavily for this as for any other widening experience—

Then generosity is the greatest and most gallant experiment you could make with your time, your money and your love.

And though others will despise and hate you, and nearly always fail you, you will never regret that experiment for one instant, yourself. For you may empty your pocketbook, but you will fill your soul.

Don't Drive on Ice.

Every winter persons are drowned in automobiles that have broken through ice on lakes and streams. The sport of motoring on ice is not worth the risk.

It is true, as is often argued, that a few inches of newly-formed ice will support an automobile. It is also true that ice does not freeze evenly on the surface of any lake or stream.

On a lake that is partly sheltered and partly exposed to strong wind, ice forms unevenly.

Many lakes are spring fed and the temperature of spring water nearly always is well above the freezing point. The warm spring water is lighter than the cold lake water and rises rapidly to the surface. So above a concealed spring may be thin ice on the lake.

Decaying vegetation on the bottom of a lake generates gases that rise to the surface and cause "air holes" in the ice.

Park the car on shore when you go for sport on the ice. It is safer. —Detroit News.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

That Word "Ballot."

Though we may use a modern voting machine, we still speak of a person voting in an election as "casting his ballot," of his vote as his "ballot."

Previous to the use of the voting machine, voting was done by means of a printed form. If we go back far enough, however, we should find a literal casting of the ballot, which is a "little ball." Through the French, it is derived from the Italian ballotta, the diminutive of balla, "ball." The connection is the old practice of secret voting by means of little balls.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Almost no one knew it, but during the hot clashes between Roosevelt and the National Youth Administration Abbott Simon, mainspring of the Youth Congress, was a house guest in the White House. He lived there while he organized and staged the congress.

After the stormy sessions were over and the 5,000 youngsters had left, Simon got up in the morning to depart from the White House. Passing his host in the corridor outside his room, Simon said cheerily:

"Good morning, Mr. President!"

FDR stared icily ahead, said nothing.

That incident typifies the gap grown between the president and the group which once looked upon him as youth's greatest hero.

Unquestionably the country at large, including some of Roosevelt's Republican critics, were with him and against the Youth Congress during their skirmish in Washington. Yet some of the president's close friends, familiar with the real facts, are worried.

Chief worry is the fact that there are 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 unemployed or partially employed youths in the country. Discontented youth is the seed of fascism, and Roosevelt has lost them.

The youth danger has been recognized by such highly respectable agencies as the American Youth Commission, of which Owen D. Young and Henry Harriman, former head of the United States Chamber of Commerce, are directors.

The commission urges a federal youth program. This also was the chief thesis of the American Youth Congress. They pointed out that while U. S. arms budgets soared, Roosevelt had cut all appropriations for youth—the CCC by $65,000,000 and the National Youth Administration by $15,000,000. Some youth leaders also pointed out that no matter how high Roosevelt upped army-navy budgets, national defense was of little value against fascist seeds of unrest at home.

* * *

Few Communists.

FACT is that the percentage of communists in the American Youth Congress is relatively negligible. The congress includes youth organizations from every walk of life—such conservative groups as the Y. W. C. A., the Student Christian Movement, even the ultra-conservative Brooklyn Young Republicans; also such radical outfits as the Young Communist League, and various trade unions.

The entire question of communism was threshed out in advance of the congress at a private White House meeting called by Mrs. Roosevelt and attended by about thirty liberal congressmen.

Frankest advice given the youth leaders came from Senator Burt Wheeler of Montana, who said:

"If you want to get anywhere on Capitol Hill, you've got to be practical. Get rid of the communists."

Youth leaders argued, however, that communists existed in the United States and in the ranks of youth, and that they had a right to be heard if the youth movement was really to be representative.

They told Wheeler that the communists could no more be barred than the name of the Communist party could be barred from the ballots in a presidential election.

They also argued that to expel the communists would merely send them underground, make them more menacing; that it was better to let them be heard, especially since they were in a vast minority.

In the end, Senator Wheeler was over-ruled. The Young Communists' League was continued as one of the many heterogeneous members of the American Youth Congress.

Note—Mrs. Roosevelt, who frequently disagreed with the congress, still remains the heroine of youth. But not her husband.

WONDER if there was any significance in the date selected by the Germans to hand us their two latest naval valentines. GOP Mixed Signals.

REPUBLICAN leaders in congress got their signals mixed when they raised that outcry of "government interference" against the commerce department's current survey of business inventories.

The survey was started last November to obtain vital information from manufacturers throughout the country on sales, new and unfilled orders, and inventories. What the G. O. P. leaders apparently did not remember was that this survey was borrowed lock, stock and barrel from their own party—in fact, from Herbert Hoover.

He started it as secretary of commerce under Coolidge, at which time the survey was approved by many industrialists and trade groups.

Since then, the survey, which is entirely voluntary, has met with whole-hearted response from the 1,800 business firms which Under-Secretary of Commerce Noble has asked to co-operate.

They recognize the need of comprehensive facts on the current state of business, as indicated by the flow of orders, sales, and the shifts in business inventories—information which has become all the more necessary since the sudden shifts of business caused by the war.

A Load of Cordwood

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AS I drove down a city street I followed a farmer with a truckload of wood. It interested me that the wood was cut in four-foot lengths, about one fourth of it split once, the rest natural logs. It was hickory, oak and maple and I had not seen such perfect cordwood since I was a boy. I wondered what manner of man would purchase such lengths, these modern days, and what city fireplace could use such heavy sticks.

The young man turned a corner and out of curiosity I followed and saw him stop in front of a tall apartment house. I parked my car and watched. In a few moments a slender, grayhaired, thoughtful looking man, of about 65 came out and hurried to the truck. With a few gestures he directed the truckman through a drive to the rear.

Here, presently, I saw the wiry young man carry the heavy pieces into the basement, while the older man looked on. Four different times I saw his wrinkled stubby hand stroke the cut ends of the wood and with a dim smile of satisfaction carry his fingers to his nostrils. And then I knew that sometime, in his youth, he had been a farmer or a woodsman, too. Within those softened, steel gray eyes I could sense the memory of summer woods, shy spring wild flowers, and bolder riotous blooms beneath the vivid leaves of autumn.

When the last fragrant piece of oak was carried down, the man paid for the treasure he had bought. Then he walked slowly to the truck and laid two slender arms upon the door, close to the young man who sat within.

"Do you like the farm?" he asked, with some solicitude.

The farm youth flushed. "Not much," he said. "A fellow has to work too hard. There's hardly time to sleep. It gets lonesome out there these long evenings. A fellow can't dress up and go down street like a guy in town. You don't make nothin' either. After eight hours work a city man is free, and has his pay check."

The old man sighed. The young man drove away. Strolling by, I remarked to the grayhaired apartment dweller, "that's splendid wood. I couldn't help noticing it. We used to haul that kind to the nearest town when I was a boy, and trade it for winter clothes or a half barrel of salt fish from the general store. Sometimes the shoemaker took a load or two and outfitted the family with footwear."

His face lighted. "I got myself a fireplace built big enough for logs like my father used to burn, down on the farm, more'n 60 years ago," he said. "I've never known, again, such precious peaceful days and nights as when my mother used to knit and my father read the old Bible with pictures in it."

SCANDINAVIAN NATIONS SEEK TO KEEP STATUS

High Living Costs, Crippled Exports Brought on By War.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last of three dispatches on the effect of the war on the Scandinavian nations.

* * *

By PETER C. RHODES
(UP Staff Correspondent)

COPENHAGEN—The Scandinavian nations, surrounded by wars which have crippled their exports, raised living costs, and reduced their merchant fleets, today are following divergent policies aimed at one end—neutrality and integrity.

Thus while there is no common line of action, the war has eased Norway, Sweden, and Denmark into a Scandinavian bloc which extends moral and voluntary aid to Finland, but refuses direct military help.

With more than five months of the western Europe war completed, the Scandinavians have learned to expect none of the profits they received from the last war, and more than the loses of 1914-1918.

Immediate peace would be the best solution for the Scandinavians, but meanwhile they have drawn together in a common resolve to keep the war in Finland and the war on the western front from spreading into their own sphere.

Sweden has shown the greatest efforts to establish, for the first time in more than a century, a large modern army with complete and up-to-date equipment. The project is a severe strain on national economy, but has been supported almost unanimously by the Swedish press.

Norway, likewise considering the future possibility of a victorious Soviet army camped on its frontiers, at present shows a tendency to make similar increases and improvements in her armed forces. Denmark, on the other hand, has made no appreciable attempts to increase her standing army. The attitude here is that it is questionable, with powerful neighbors on all sides, whether Scandinavian rearmament could do more than serve as a warning that an invasion, successful or not would be costly.

If Finnish resistance continues, however, it may alter this attitude and raise the question of the role militarized Scandinavia could play in a war threatening to spread into the Peninsula.

Finland had never formed a bloc with the Scandinavian nations. She had, however, close political, economic and military ties with the Baltic states, with a foreign policy based largely on friendship with Germany.

Since the Russian-German pact and the Russian-Finnish war, there has been practically a rupture of Finnish-German relations, accompanied by a strong tendency throughout Scandinavia to consider Finland a member of the bloc.

Economic considerations continue to hold the center of interest in Denmark, Sweden, and Norway. No common stand had been taken on shipping policies as yet, but it is felt that the three nations may soon unite to adopt means of cutting their rising losses in mercantile shipping.

At present most Norwegian ships headed for England and France travel in British convoys, without any appreciable decline in war-time losses. Swedish skippers are allowed to make individual decisions, and split almost evenly between travelling in convoy or alone.

Denmark, however, within easy reach for Germany, subscribes to German claims that a merchant ship traveling in convoy is a legitimate target for attack, and has forbidden all ships of Danish registry to enter a belligerent convoy.

The sharp rise in Scandinavian fuel imports for future emergencies, bringing with it an increase in unfavorable trade balance, may be in vain, it appears today, with the Scandinavian governments dipping into their own emergency reserves to fill public fuel demands.

Norway and Sweden have been less severely hit by the recent cold wave than Denmark, because of well-developed electrical plants, but the much-needed reserves are not being developed.

The trade losses, aggravated by both the allied blockade on the sea and the German blockade in the air and under the surface, have increased prices of import necessities to the Danish consumer, with further price increases expected. At the same time exports appear slated for further decline with all belligerents ordering their nationals to tighten their belts in a program of sharp war-time restrictions on consumption of goods.

The sharp increase in freight rates increases dificulties for Scandinavia, as their imports are paid for on a basis of cost plus insurance plus freight.

Pope Vitelianus ordered church services to be read in Latin in the year 663.

BYRON B. ASHBROOK FOR CONGRESS

Special Election, Tuesday, February 27, 1940
(To Complete the Term of Congressman William A. Ashbrook, Expiring January 3, 1941)

The reasons why Byron B. Ashbrook should be elected to serve as Congressman from our district are best explained in an editorial in the Newark Leader, February 15th:

"No congressional district was ever better served than Ohio's 17th while William A. Ashbrook was its representative.

"Byron Ashbrook's lack of political background is probably in favor of the voters of this district. Of far more importance is his experience in business and the matured judgment he has acquired through that association. And of equal import is his knowledge of finance and agricultural interests. Legislators schooled in this science are today needed in Washington more than ever before.

"His election means a continuation of the equitable representation in Washington to which we have been accustomed."

The radio announcement followed issuance of a Soviet war communique which stated that Red army troops occupied the town and fortress of Koivisto (Bjoerke) and captured large quantities of Finnish war material.

War Price Rise Hits Canadians Of Low Income

OTTAWA—(U.P.)—A general increase in living costs may not be discernible to most, but higher prices have struck a hard blow at "borderline" homes on low income and in the homes of those on relief, according to the Canadian Welfare Council.

Referring to the effects of the price rise on relief clients, a council bulletin declares that "neither wages nor official scheduled simultaneously overtake the sudden jumps in the prices of staples."

The costs of certain foods, of textiles and fuel, have "immediately affected thousands of these homes, throwing back upon the wearied mother a burden apt to break her were the voluntary special agencies not at hand to help her in budgeting, to counsel and advise."

The council went on to point out that in other homes, sudden income, after long need, has brought its problem of unwise spending and a flock of deferred debt collectors.

Another problem was that of enlistments, readjusting domestic relations, patching up old estrangements, locating and reuniting children, straightening out common law relationships and getting adequate guardianship for children of missing or incapable mothers before worried fathers go overseas.

'Vendol' Worth Many Times Its Cost Says Local Lady

Began to feel better almost at once and improvement continued daily. No more dizzy feelings or stomach upsets.

MRS. CLIFFORD E. MIKESELL

Thousands of men and women who once suffered without finding the right medicine to relieve them, are now praising Vendol and saying it is the finest thing they ever tried. Hundreds right here in Mansfield, out of gratitude for sufferings relieved, are giving Vendol their highest praise, many in public statements, in their sincere desire to help others in distress. For instance:

Mrs. Clifford E. Mikesell of 58 Bushnell street, whose husband is an Enamelist at the Humphryes Manufacturing Company, tells of her happy experience with Vendol as follows:

"Years of suffering from constipation had me where I hardly knew a day free of suffering. When the constipation would be worse I'd suffer from acid indigestion, 'heartburn,' a full bloated feeling caused by gas, and I dared not eat too much highly seasoned or greasy foods because they just seemed to feel like lead in my stomach.

"Then too, this constipated condition often caused me to awaken many mornings feeling worn out, dizzy, with a headache, bad taste in my mouth, tongue, and unpleasant breath.

"I will always be thankful to the people who gave their experiences in the papers telling how Vendol helped them because this led me to try Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets and I can say they have been worth many times more than they cost.

"Vendol acted splendidly to relieve my constipation and I then noticed my other trouble improved very fast so that seems to prove that constipation was causing all of it. Vendol gave me a good cleaning out, and I began to feel better almost at once, and now I truly feel like another person. I am happy to recommend this grand medicine for it is simply wonderful."

If constipation or need of a diuretic to your kidneys is causing you a lot of troubles, don't put off getting Vendol and see how quickly it will bring relief.

You are invited to talk freely with the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, corner Main and 4th streets, without obligation, but give Vendol a chance to help you as it has so many all around here. Get Vendol today from most any druggist.

ENTERS STATE SENATE RACE

Ashlander Third to Announce Candidacy for Republican Nomination.

Wallace W. Barnhill, Ashland county Boy Scout leader and former county commissioner, was in the race today for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 27th-29th district.

He is the third Republican to enter the contest for the nomination. P. H. Rogers of Grafton, incumbent senator, and Joseph Jameson, Lorain, are also seeking the nomination.

A revised senatorial set-up in Ohio will entitle the 27th-29th district, which includes Richland county, to two state senators next year. It has only one at present.

Barnhill is a member of the Nankin rural board of education and chairman of the Ashland county board of public assistance. He served five years as township trustee and eight years as county commissioner. He was active in organizing the Ohio Association of Township Trustees and Clerks.

Former Scoutmaster in Marion, he is now a committeeman for the Ashland Boy Scout troop.

HAVE FREE RANGE

YERKA, Calif. —(U.P.)—Old Dobbins around here apparently know the law. When one of them wandered onto the highway and made contact with Henry DeClark's automobile, it was necessary afterward to send DeClark to the hospital and his car to the repair shop, while Old Dobbin departed under his own power. No damages can be asked because under a law passed in the '80s the county is still open range and fences are not required.

Dishes Like This Are A Cinch

IN A MODERN TAPPAN GAS RANGE

Difficult dishes become unbelievably easy to prepare with a modern Tappan gas range. Here you see Miss Louise McFarland, food lecturer of the Gasco Food Institute, about to remove two luscious looking dishes from the roomy Tappan "Visualite" oven. Both of these servings are prepared during the second day's Food Institute program. Recipes for them appear below.

See The New Tappan "Visualized Cooking" Demonstrated At The Food Institute

"Visualized Cooking" is the new exacting method of oven cooking made possible by Tappan's two new features — Visualite oven and Visiguide temperature chart. You'll witness this newest mode in cooking demonstrated during the programs of the 1940 Gasco Food Institute. You'll see, also, how the many improved features on modern gas ranges have made cooking vastly easier and cooking results more certain than ever before.

You'll observe the convenience and efficiency of such famous Tappan advantages as Flexo-Speed oven with low temperature burner, automatic lighting giant-sized top burners with simmer-set valves for new "waterless" cooking, CleanQuick smokeless high speed broiler, divided cooking top and other features.

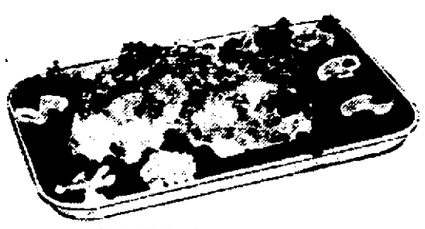
Same Results In Your Kitchen

These countless time and money saving features of modern gas ranges will bring Food Institute results to your kitchen. A Tappan gas range can be installed now on a convenient payment plan. Inspect a lovely new model for your kitchen now at The Gas Company.

Stuffed Cabbage

1 head cabbage
1 onion
4 strips bacon
1 lb. chopped uncooked beef
1 tsp. salt
Few grains pepper
½ C. ketchup
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Cook cabbage head 30 minutes. Drain, cool, remove center. Mince onion and cook with 2 strips diced bacon until light brown. Add beef, cook 5 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Fill cabbage with mixture. Bake in a covered casserole in moderate oven (350 degrees) 35 minutes. Garnish with bacon strips. Serves four.



Fish Baked in Vegetables

2 halibut steaks—1 inch thick (about 4 lbs.)
2 cans condensed vegetable soup (10½ oz.)
¼ C. melted butter
1 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. scraped onion
1 Tbsp. minced parsley
1 lemon—juice and rind
2 C. bread crumbs

Mix salt, bread crumbs, onion, parsley, lemon and butter, to make stuffing. Spread this between 2 layers of fish. Cover with condensed vegetable soup. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 30 minutes on greased oven-proof platter, or on parchment paper or cheese cloth in greased pan if fish must be removed to serve.

SUES 2 UNDER OHIO WAGE LAW

Industrial Relations Director Charges $1,068 Due Six Women Workers Here.

The A. O. Widders and Son confectionery and Nicholas Weamer, proprietor of the Southern hotel, had been named defendants today in two Ohio industrial relations suits for a total of $1,068 alleged due six women workers under the Minimum Wage law.

Filed in common pleas court by George A. Strain, director of the state department of industrial relations, one action seeks $671 from A. O. Widders and Richard C. Widders and the other asks $397 from Weamer.

Strain contends in his petitions that four women employes in the laundry at the Southern hotel and two at the Widders establishment at 81 Bowman street were underpaid, one of them working 40 hours a week for only $4 and another 48 hours for $6 a week.

Strain brought the suits as trustee for the six women employes. The judgments he asks are for the following employes and amounts:

Betty Aungst, $420, and Dessie Hochscheid, $251.77, both employes of the Widders confectionery; Anna Swank, $71.28; Grace Shanks, $112; Irene Winsky, $7.72, and Gladys Schivinski, $182. The last four women listed are, or were, employes of the Southern hotel laundry.

A part of the back-pay sought in the actions is for work performed as far back as February, 1936. Atty. Claude F. Ewing is the Mansfield counsel for the plaintiff.

FOLLOWS IN DAD'S FOOTSTEPS AS HE SINGS WITH GLEE CLUB

"Like father, like son" could well be applied to Charles Ireland, Wooster college student, and his father, David Ireland of Mansfield.

The elder Ireland always has been interested in choral work and has been a member of the famous Columbus Republican Glee club which has sung for several presidents. Now his son, Charles, follows in his footsteps in the Wooster College glee club. The father has been a member of the Republican Glee club since 1921 and still rehearses and sings with it occasionally.

Charles Ireland, who is a freshman in the divinity classes, is student director of the glee club and recently directed a public concert at the Wooster Methodist church.

The glee club goes on tour next month and will give concerts in Washington and New York, with Ireland directing. Students ordinarily don't get into the glee club until their second year at school.

Ireland will serve as guest pastor at the church in Burbank next Sunday. He hopes to become a student pastor while working for his degree at Wooster college.

College Grads of Ohio Help Develop 2 New Gasolines

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A small army of research scientists and petroleum technologists, practically all of whom are graduates of American colleges and universities, played the leading role in developing the two new gasolines recently introduced by the Shell Oil Company, St. Louis.

Included in this group are graduates of Ohio State university, the University of Akron, the University of Cincinnati, the University of Dayton, and forty-one other mid-western colleges and universities.

The improved qualities of the two new gasolines were worked out experimentally by these research technicians, and then were followed through with tests under actual operating conditions before the gasolines were made available to the public.

The fundamental principle on which the research staff based their work was that a modern motor fuel must be an all-round balanced gasoline. No one essential quality should be emphasized at the expense of some other important qualities. This ideal of a "balanced" gasoline was faithfully adhered to, and the result is that the new Super Shell and Shell Premium give a stepped-up performance. Super Shell has been improved, not only in anti-knock, but also its special qualities of improved starting, warm-up characteristic, and mileage, in order to give motorists added satisfaction from their cars and increased savings in modern stop-and-go driving.

Shell Premium, gives an even wider margin of performance, the utmost that any motorist can obtain from his car.

Both of these gasolines are naturaly more costly to make, but the additional expense has been absorbed by Shell and there has been no advance in price.

WE'VE COME A LONG WAY TOGETHER

{A WORD OF APPRECIATION TO SOHIO DEALERS}

ONE of the things we are most proud of on our 70th anniversary is that nearly 5,000 independent dealers have staked the welfare of their businesses on the name SOHIO. That is testimony of the strongest and sincerest sort.

The confidence of these independent merchants is one of the most valuable assets an oil company can have, for as owners of their own businesses these men are free to stock their tanks with any of scores of petroleum brands. Their fine service to you, and the high quality of SOHIO products, have made our gasolines and oils the most popular in the State.

Some of these SOHIO dealers have been with us since the time when ancient, pioneer autos first chugged in for gas. Others have joined us down through the years.

To the local merchants whose names are shown here, and to all the other loyal, efficient dealers throughout the State who have joined hands with us in the sale of SOHIO products, we say a sincere "Thanks." We'll do our utmost to be worthy of your loyalty.
